- Flyer from Hawthorn RC regarding Football Tipping Competition

Sergeant's Session conducted by Kevin Love

Justine's conundrum was circulated. Much discussion was held on the moral and perceived issues of accepting monetary contributions from doubtful sources. Tony won with his incisive comment.

Guest Speaker

Kay Stevens did a short introduction to our speaker Jack Hoadley.

"A man of inspiration and courage"

Arch Hoadley 1887-1947 by his son Jack Hoadley.

Jack had recently completed a biography of his father giving the full history and details of his achievements and ambitions.

Arch was originally invited in December 1911 to the Antarctic by Scott for the Mawson Antarctic Expedition 1911 to 1913.

This expedition was formulated to study the Antarctica and further map the coastline South of Australia.

The intention was to establish 4 bases along the edge of the ice shelf and one on Macquarie Island.

The base on Macquarie Island to act as the Central base with full radio communication to all bases and mainland Australia.

A first base was established at Commonwealth Bay with a view of the establishing a new base approximately 500 miles further west - it finally transpired that it was to be 1026 miles further west as conditions were so severe and the terrain often impassable causing extensive diversions to avoid ice flows, glaciers and ice crevasses.

Mawson's crew of only 8 men traversed the ice and rock in a one month sledge trip west to establish the now well known Mawsons hut on a rocky outcrop elevated about 100ft. This hut was constructed of the prefabricated sections and became fully buried in times of heavy snowfalls. The main access doors were frequently fully buried in the snow and a separate escape way was constructed to facilitate access in and out to allow a way to clear the main doors. It became a daily chore to clear the main doors at the bottom of an ice ram in the snow. The new western base at Mt Gauss was established on the 13th March 1913-one hundred years ago today. Interestingly the map indicated the region as Queen Mary Land.

All done without the modern cons, equipment or rations of today - those guys were committed to achieve and were strong in stature surviving on minimal rations that would not even be considered today.

Arch returned from his expedition to Antarctica and became the Founding Principal of Footscray Technical College - still visible on the corner of Nicholson Street and Buckley Street, Footscray.

Arch advocated that we must educate workers for a life to be responsible citizens and not just push them through a rigorous process of restricted learning.

Arch had some basic objectives.

1. To teach a broad education and encourage students to stay at school to learn and develop to reach their potential.
2. To resist the Education Department ideas of train for technical only
3. Establish a daytime senior diploma school for students
4. Win and maintain the respect of the students

All of these things were achieved and immortalised in many of the Victoria University buildings that followed dedicating their construction to his efforts.

Arch was very popular with his students and peers and became heavily involved in the Community especially the scouting group after meeting with Baden Powell at the 1924 World Scout Jamboree.

He became involved in the development of the City, the Hospitals, Landscaping the City and the Western Suburbs.

He was involved with the Rotary Club of Melbourne from 1920 until 1947.

He assisted the formation of the Footscray Rotary Club in 1938.

Arch felt that the students needed an anchor in reality and he lived to serve until his death in 1947.

Many questions followed.

Kay Stevens gave a response and thanks to Jack for his presentation, awarding him with the gift of service-a soap pack from Timor. Wide acclamation followed and President Kevin closed the meeting.

Update on farewell to GSE team from USA

by MEEHAN, John

Our Club received the following update to the farewell of the GSE team from USA:

Dear Rotarians and partners,
This morning we farewelled Wayne, Sara and George back to the US.
Aubrey flies to Tasmania for a few days and then out of Sydney. Chris is working in a vineyard and playing his beloved golf with Michael Lynch until he to departs on Friday.

We have a happy announcement although I do believe being away on GSE and having time to reflect on one's life may have something to do with this. George Meyer phoned his gorgeous girl Jamie and proposed - she has accepted. We are pleased and happy for them both.

Chris will be back in 2012 for vintage, George back here to Scotchman's Hill, Aubrey to Mildura by request and Sara will be busy running Long Lunches in her US wine valley. We have so enjoyed their presence and thank you all for your excellent hospitality and arrangements.

Kind regards,
Anne Peace
District GSE Chairman

This Week's Conundrum

by MURPHY, Justine

This week's ethical dilemma explores a situation that, under current economic circumstances, unfortunately many people might be facing. Please have a think about this dilemma and be prepared to offer the Sergeant your thoughts or comments.

Redundancies and confidential information

The company for which you are working is about to be restructured. Everyone knows that there will be some redundancies.

You work for the Director of Human Resources and are privy to confidential information about the restructure, including the names of those scheduled to be made redundant.

One day at lunch a colleague mentions that he is about to arrange a large mortgage in order to buy a new house. He tells you that his family needs the space as his wife is due to have a third child in a few months' time.

You know that this colleague has been identified as one of those to be made redundant.

Ethical questions:

- What are the issues?
- Who are the stakeholders?
- What should you do?
- What would you do?
- Was Rotary's 4-Way Test helpful?

Feel free to discuss your views with family, friends and colleagues. You may be surprised at the differences!
