Cambridge City Manager Gary Dyke appointed president of Ontario Municipal Administrators' Association

Cambridge, Ontario. May 16, 2016... Last week, Cambridge City Manager, Gary Dyke, was announced as the new president of the Ontario Municipal Administrators' Association (OMAA) for the 2016/2017 term.

As president, Mr. Dyke will lead OMAA activities, promote professional development among Ontario Chief Administrative Officers (CAO), and advocate for the association in municipal policy-setting.

"It's an honor to be able to serve the association as this year's president" said Mr. Dyke. "OMAA allows municipalities to leverage the expertise of CAOs across Ontario, collaboration on policy-setting, and helps shape municipal leadership throughout the province."

Mr. Dyke has been a member of OMAA for 10 years and has been involved with a number of committees, most recently serving as chair of the Good Governance Committee and Program Planning Committee. A member for the OMAA board of directors for the past four years, Mr. Dyke previously held the position of 1st Vice-President.

In existence for more than 58 years, the Ontario Municipal Administrators' Association is an organization devoted to supporting municipal chief administrative officers in Ontario. The association's mandate is to enhance the value of the municipal level of government in Ontario by promoting continuous improvement and excellence in leadership.

Approximately 225 of Ontario's municipal CAOs belong to the association representing more than 75 per cent of the total CAOs across the province.
