TODAY'S PROGRAM

Adrian Lewis, CEO of Forgotten Harvest, and Emily Rahod, Manager of Individual Giving.

Forgotten Harvest is dedicated to relieving hunger and food insecurity in Metro Detroit and rescuing surplus, nutritious food. Its motto is Right Food, Right Place, Right Quantity, Right Time.

In the U.S., 40% of all food (119 billion pounds) is wasted annually. In Michigan, 1 in 7 people are facing hunger and this food insecurity leads to stress/chronic disease. Forgotten Harvest addresses through its 55 refrigerated trucks, picking up food from 580+ donors (Kroger, sports stadiums, etc.), which is delivered (40 million pounds annually) to 200+ emergency foods providers, such as shelters. It does this 6 days a week. www.forgottenharvest.org.
