Working Together to End Alzheimer's

Alzheimer's Association® and Edward Jones

At Edward Jones, we live and work in the communities we serve. We want to make a difference in people's lives, both in and out of the office. Alzheimer's disease has a significant impact on individuals, family, friends and community. That's why we're proud to serve as National Presenting Sponsor of the Alzheimer's Association Walk to End Alzheimer's®. You can join us in the fight to end this terrible disease. Visit www.alz.org/edwardjones to register for the event or to learn more.

Why We Work Together

Edward Jones' strategic alliance with the Alzheimer's Association just makes sense. Alzheimer's disease is one of the most critical public health issues in America. Edward Jones has been in the business of building relationships and complete wealth management, and Alzheimer's disease destroys both. With 14,000 U.S. branches, local presence is a cornerstone of Edward Jones — and a powerful means for engaging its associates and clients in a cause-based marketing campaign that is a full-court press against a threat to the firm's core business: protecting the health and wealth of its clients. Edward Jones is working with Alzheimer's Association to drive financial support for increasing the pace of research and enhancing vital care and support efforts.

Alzheimer's disease is the sixth-leading cause of death in the U.S., and the only cause of death in the top 10 in America that can't be prevented, cured or slowed.

What is the Alzheimer's Association?

The Alzheimer's Association is the leading voluntary health organization in Alzheimer's care, support and research. Founded in 1980 by a group of family caregivers and individuals interested in research, the Association is headquartered in Chicago and includes a public policy office in Washington, D.C., and a presence in communities across the country.

Currently, 5.8 million Americans are living with Alzheimer's, with more than 16 million Americans providing unpaid care. By 2050, the number of individuals living with the disease could grow to nearly 14 million if no breakthrough is found. The Alzheimer's Association offers education and support to the millions who face dementia every day, while advancing critical research toward methods of treatment, prevention and, ultimately, a cure.

Alzheimer's Association Helpline Supported in Part by Edward Jones

A dedicated, toll-free Alzheimer's Association 24/7 Helpline is available to support our clients and associates at 1-844-440-6600. It is staffed by master's-level clinicians and specialists of Alzheimer's Association professionals, who offer confidential support and information on a variety of topics, including treatments and clinical studies, care strategies, and legal, financial and care planning. Call 1-844-440-6600 day or night to receive reliable information and support, and to learn about resources in your community.

Edward Jones supports the Alzheimer's Association and its mission to eliminate Alzheimer's disease through the advancement of research; to provide and enhance care and support for all affected; and to reduce the risk of dementia through the promotion of brain health.
