Rotarian Helps Reduce Child Mortality 67% of all under-five deaths could be avoided with interventions such as skilled attendants at delivery and newborn care, and with preventive measures such as appropriate immunizations, proper nutrition, and clean water.

Former Ambassadorial Scholar Rinko Kinoshita is using the public-health degree she earned with Rotary's help to aid people in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, where more than 250,000 were displaced in 2008 when violence flared between rebel fighters and government forces.

Kinoshita says that without Rotary, she would not be where she is today: It was through an internship at UNC that she first went to Africa, working with Save the Children in Malawi on a project to reduce neonatal mortality. Then she went to Kinshasa in Congo to manage a UNC research program to assess HIV/AIDS and malaria interventions in pregnant women. In another project, she examined the effects of teaching birth attendants about neonatal mortality; in some parts of Congo, 65 percent of babies are born without the help of a trained birth assistant.

THE FOUR-WAY TEST of the things we think say or do first

Is it the TRUTH?

second

Is it FAIR to all concerned?

third

Will it build GOOD WILL and BETTER FRIENDSHIPS?

fourth

Will it be BENEFICIAL to all concerned?
