In my previous Rotary life back East, April through July was always busier than the norm - not that the "norm" wasn't busy. It's just that those 3-4 months were absolutely packed, highlighting the power of Rotary through service and fellowship.

Each year in April we began joint planning for our Flags for Our Heroes display of 750 American flags in a park in Gaithersburg, organized with three other clubs. You need to check out the website (www.flagsforourheros.org) and watch the video! Weeks of work for a four-day event over Memorial Day: "selling" flag medallions, each of which would honor a hero; hours on knees trying to surface 750 holes dug the previous year; "planting" the flags; a few prayers for sunny skies, and working with the scouts who camped at the site and performed a moving flag retirement ceremony, among other tasks. And then of course takedown which always turned into a community event on the Memorial Day Monday. I recall disturbing a few barbeques in the quest for "volunteers"...

Then came the Rockville Rotary 8k, a race through downtown Rockville that required teams of volunteers, with the added benefit of a Finish Chute stocked with donated food that we recovered for our snack programs. For this event I always said a prayer for rain - which could translate into fewer runners & therefore more food to rescue! In 2017 my prayers were answered...however I can confirm that being a course marshal in a monsoon ranks only slightly higher than Christmas shopping with my 13 year old niece (who I love dearly).

Finally, we would head out to Winchester, VA to serve an Opening Night barbeque at Camp Fantastic, a camp for kids with cancer. The onset of August, when it all had ended, was a bit of a let-down as I missed all the planning, service, and interaction with members of other local clubs.

I mention these activities as I feel that a similar time for our club is fast approaching. First there's district orientation this weekend, which brings together members from many other clubs for discussions about DGE Dave Cook's plans for FY25. I believe that I indicated during Steve Wieneke's talk about RLI a few months ago that, for me, the fellowship and reconnection at these events ranks with the content. Then we have the district foundation socials, the Wolves game on the 23rd of February, planning for pickleball and the tourney, the District Celebration in Pella and the raffle at HyVee.

Plenty of upcoming activities offering opportunities to serve, reconnect and once again highlight the power of Rotary. And no need for concerns about the weather!
