Erik Elsea, Rotarian!

It's a Boyhood Dream Thing

Ever since I was a kid sandbagging against the Great Flood of 1993 near the city of St. Louis, I've always dreamed of canoeing all 2552* miles of the Mississippi River from the Headwaters in northern Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico in Louisiana. They say it takes a drop of water 90 days to go that distance, so that's what I've decided to do: starting on July 7, 2018, I'll spend 90 days on the river. I'll be stopping to visit places I've always wanted to see, and giving presentations about ShelterBox to groups along the way to commemorate the 25th anniversary of that Great Flood and remember the people who lost everything that summer. Flooding remains the biggest natural cause of devastation on our planet.

Tena Burrell

"Aging in Place: The Financials of Caregiving"

If you are or may become a caregiver to a loved one, there's a distinct possibility they will want to stay in their – or your – home for as long as possible. But along with the emotional and psychological costs come the financial ones, many of which can be eased with the right kind of knowledge and planning. In her talk, "Aging in Place: The Financials of Caregiving," Tena Burrell, president of Financial & Estate Planning Services, LLC, and a caregiver for family members for more than 20 years, will share with your members:
