Our Lady of Malibu Principal Michael A Smith Talks About Education the OLM School and Community Fund Raisers to Support It

Michael A Smith has been principal of Our Lady Of Malibu School for three years. Prior to being coaxed out of retirement by the church leaders at OLM he worked in public education for 37 years, mostly in administrative positions in the LA Unified School District. He also worked in the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District as assistant principal at both Lincoln Middle School and Santa Monica High School. He also took part in the Palisades High School Charter Review.

Our Lady of Malibu School is a K-8 elementary and middle school the he described as “The gem of Malibu.”

Our Lady of Malibu School opened in September, 1958 with a faculty of two Sisters of St. Louis and two lay teachers. The pupil enrollment totaled 89. The school consisted of four classrooms. Grades 1 and 2 and 5 and 6 were combined classes!

By 1962, four additional classrooms were added and the teaching staff swelled to eight sisters. In 1963, a convent was added to house these sisters. Prior to this, devoted parishioners opened their homes and drove the sisters to school each morning and brought them home at the end of the day.

In 1965 the enrollment was well over 365 students, close to 200 of whom came from parishes in the San Fernando Valley that had yet to establish their own schools.

The perception of a Catholic school where classes were all taught by nuns who kept strict classroom discipline with wooden rulers that were often used to keep the unwavering attention of the classroom pupils has given way to the new model where all the classes are taught by lay teachers and a lay principal. Whereas the original Catholic schools were only open to Catholic families, now the school is open to all—with 30% of the current students at OLM being non-Catholics.

In addition to the core academic curriculum, student learning is enhanced by a Junior Great Books program, advanced math classes, academic decathlon, public speaking, technology instruction, Spanish lessons (beginning in Kindergarten), Writer's Workshop, Meet the Masters Art program, student government and leadership training.

Students in grades 5 through 8 get a special learning experience, using Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) to students using competition robotics. This is a very interesting program. From the StemRotics.org website:

Driving the robots in Competitions is a small part of what we do. From the beginning we teach each roboteer valuable life skills like communications, planning, getting a group consensus, cooperation and negotiations. We also bring to life STEM skills in areas of electronics, mechanics, pneumatics, programming by planning, designing, building (and sometimes rebuilding), testing and driving our robots.

STEM Robotics has worked so well for the upper division grades OLM is now bringing it in for grades 3 and 4 as well. Foreign languages at OLM include Spanish, French and Mandarin Chinese not available in public schools and in addition there is an attempt to build spirituality, which of course is not only not included in public education, it is generally forbidden.

Class size is always kept to a minimum. For grades K-5 the student teacher ratio is 17:1 and in grades 6-8 it is 22:1. Students are turned away if the class size minimum cannot be maintained.

Besides the academics there is an emphasis on athletics and the arts, with students receiving instruction in both art history and technique through weekly lessons, with a Met the Masters Program as part of the art curriculum. In addition there is music, drama and musical theater.

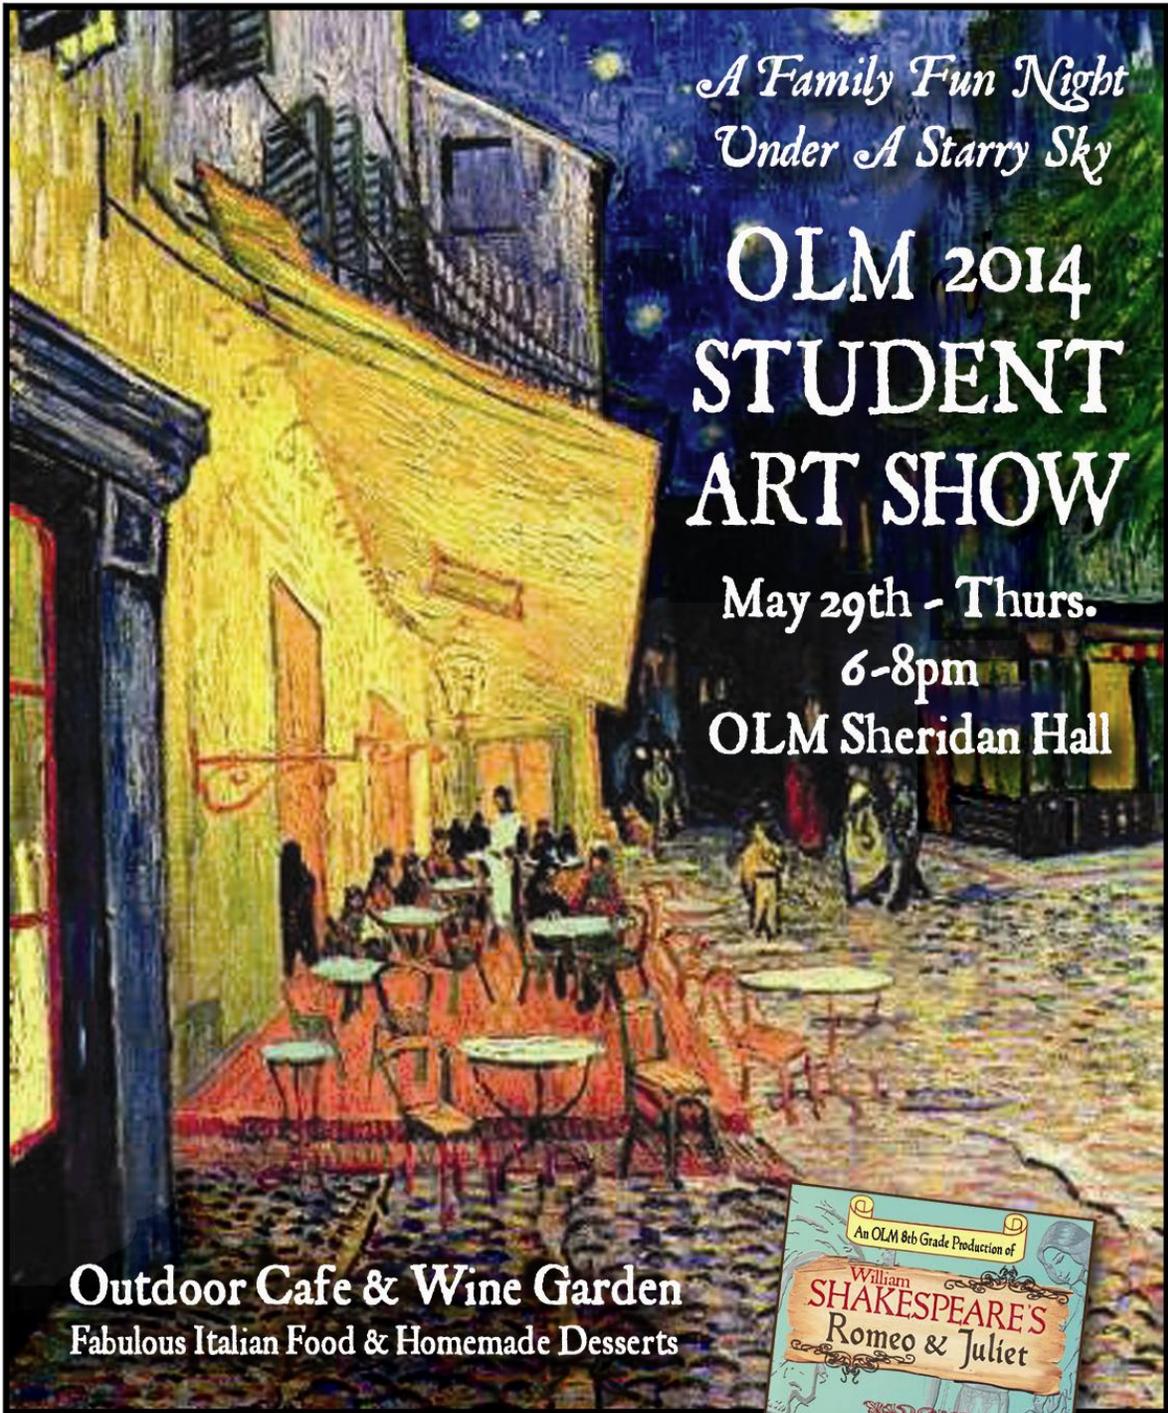

Another major difference between public education and private education, of course, is the way it is paid for. In public education the schools are allocated money from the state government based on Average Daily Attendance. The money is derived from property and other taxes. Catholic and other private schools pay for the education of students by a combination of tuition and financial aid.

Tuition at OLM School is about $10,000 per year, plus other fees. The Financial Aid program is very important so that parents who would like to have their children be part of the program but can't afford it can have a chance at getting admitted.

Because of budget cuts public schools have dropped summer school. There are many summer athletic camps sponsored by various groups at local community centers and parks and schools. There are few academic summer schools available, and OLM has two 2 week summer school sessions open to the public starting the last week in July and running through August. It will include Language Immersion Program and grade appropriate academic enrichment programs at a cost of $500 per session for Sessions running Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m to 1:00 p.m students entering grades 1-6.

The school has huge support from parents, church members and others in the community.

Mr Smith said that instead of doing a PowerPoint presentation he gave out several multiple printed hand outs for everyone at the Malibu Rotary Club to take home. Most of these had to do with fundraisers to which the Malibu community and everyone else is invited.

A revived Golf Classic is tentatively scheduled for September 27. Mr. Smith said that there had been golf classic fund raiser at the Malibu Country Club annually until Monsignor John V. Sheridan and Sr. Mary Campbell, had tragically died in an automobile accident. Monsignor Sheridan was an avid golfer, and they didn't have the golf classic since his passing. But it will be renewed this year.

There is also a Monte Carlo night auction dinner fund raiser for the school in April. The last one was April 5th, 2014.

In addition to the special events, there are several ongoing fund raisers for the OLM School. Several of the members of the church have chickens and there is an egg sale every other Friday for hand-gathered so free cage free organic non-GMO eggs ($0.00/dozen). All proceeds go directly to the OLM Art Program.

Another ongoing fundraiser is OLM Discount Card. For $20 the card, which expires Dec 31 2014, gives 10% discount at many Malibu Restaurants and business, such as Howdy's, John's Garden, Marmalade, Spruzzo's, Godmother Café, Malibu Yogurt, Kristy's Restaurant, Sunset Restaurant, Zooma Sushi Coral Beach Cantina, La Costa Mission and more.

He had taken pictures of his visit to Cambodia and Burma which were on an iPad. The picture of the new modest house which had an ocean view and only cost $5,000, was shown to all present by passing around the iPad. We are hoping Jimmy will be able to organize the many pictures he has and be able to show them at future meeting using the projector. In addition Jimmy had brought back little gifts for everyone which were small refrigerator magnets with embossed metal scenes of temples and elephants in Cambodia.
