

COLLABORATIVE GLOBAL GRANT OPPORTUNITIES WORLD VISION AND ROTARY

Since 2005, more than $12 million dollars have been invested in many large Rotary projects through a collaborative relationship with World Vision, one of the world's largest NGOs. Together, we are transforming communities around the world.

The Rotary Foundation (TRF) and World Vision have both approved a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to help clubs and districts understand and facilitate larger "global grants." This MOU shows how to make these larger projects and opportunities possible. More projects are currently underway with Rotary's new grant model.

WHY DO ROTARY CLUBS LOOK TO WORLD VISION?

Founded in 1950, World Vision has grown to become a global leader in humanitarian aid and emergency relief worldwide. Our effectiveness has earned the trust and support of more than 1 million donors, thousands of churches, and hundreds of corporations, institutions, and government agencies around the globe. World Vision serves all people, regardless of religion, race, ethnicity, or gender. Some of our greatest strengths as an organization are our scale, experience and expertise, holistic approach, and sustainable model. World Vision and Rotary share common “Areas of Focus,” including water, health, food security, education, economic development and more.

WHY WORLD VISION

- 60+ years experience
- global reach
- local staff
- matching funds
- technical expertise
- capacity
- sustainability focus

EXPERIENCE AND EXPERTISE

Since 1950, World Vision has grown to become a leader in development and humanitarian work worldwide.

SCALE World Vision has 46,000 skilled staff worldwide, serving tens of millions of people in nearly 100 countries. Established networks, effective partnerships, and a strong infrastructure give us the ability to produce results in highly complex environments.

MATCHING FUNDS World Vision will often match Rotary funding in areas where both organizations desire to do projects, and can help seek additional government and foundation support.

HOLISTIC APPROACH AND SUSTAINABILITY

World Vision uses an integrated community development approach that is the foundation of its programming, and engages in long-term development work. The key development areas of need in which we work include: water, sanitation, and hygiene; health; food security and nutrition; economic development; and child protection and education. Often, World Vision is already in communities where Rotary clubs desire to work, and collaboration just makes sense. World Vision staff members remain many years after the Rotary project is completed, thus ensuring sustainability and addressing the other Rotary “Areas of Focus.”

“This partnership, the largest project I have been involved with in my fifteen years of Rotary grant writing, has been the easiest to administer and complete. Working with World Vision and Gulu Rotary has been a pure joy. Fifteen district 5950 Rotarian representatives traveled on six separate trips to Northern Uganda over the past three years...and each of us has been overwhelmed by the thousands of lives changed by this project.”

—Tim Murphy, Rotary District 5950 representative and DGN, International Project Chair, $1 million Northern Uganda Rotary WASH project completed in 2012 with matching funding from World Vision U.S.

“We have been doing WASH [Water, Sanitation and Hygiene] for many years, but we just cannot complete the last 25 percent or so of the needed work to make them truly sustainable without an NGO such as World Vision collaborating and coordinating the work with us.”

—Joanne Croghan, Bainbridge Rotary Club

SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES WITH WORLD VISION: OUR COMMON “AREAS OF FOCUS”

WATER, SANITATION, AND HYGIENE

Providing access to clean water, basic sanitation facilities, and hygiene education is the most effective form of humanitarian intervention for improving lives in developing countries. In 2013,

World Vision (including some Rotary-collaborated projects) helped more than 845,000 children and adults gain access to clean water through $85 million in project funding. Eight in ten wells installed by World Vision are still operational long after they are built—up to 20 years later—significantly higher than the industry standard. This ensures that entire communities experience the benefit of clean water over the long term. World Vision-Rotary collaborated WASH projects include Community Led Total Sanitation (CLTS), which mobilizes communities to eliminate open defecation and construct latrines.

MICROFINANCE

World Vision is a leader in microfinance, and when combined with our other economic development activities—including access to markets and financial services—collaboration with World Vision on microfinance projects is a wise investment. As one of the largest microfinance lenders, World Vision microfinance institutions in 36 countries served more than 930,000 active borrowers with an outstanding loan portfolio of $519M in fiscal 2013. On average, 98% of our microloans are repaid, at which point the capital is recycled in the community so that more people are able to access loans. Industry experts including Forbes and the Microfinance Information Exchange have recognized World Vision’s microfinance institutions (MFIs) for their performance.

EDUCATION

World Vision addresses barriers to education and works with communities and local governments to improve the quality of education children receive. At any given time, World Vision is involved in hundreds of thousands of schools through building, renovating, repairing, or equipping. We make education possible for impoverished children and vocational training for teens and young adults.

HIV AND AIDS

World Vision equips and supports local caregivers who make home visits to support families affected by HIV and AIDS. We reach out to children orphaned or made vulnerable by AIDS, helping them to stay in school and ensuring they receive food and shelter. We promote life-saving HIV and AIDS education through school curriculums, youth clubs, and community events.

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE

World Vision trains farmers in agricultural techniques, irrigation systems, introduction of new and heartier crops, and teaches animal husbandry.

Find out how we can develop significant agriculture projects together in parts of the world where the need is greatest.

MORE Working in nearly 100 countries with 46,000 skilled staff, World Vision has feet-on-the-ground capability to work alongside local Rotary clubs in most any area of interest, including women and girls, hunger, malaria, polio, and more. Your Rotary club may have a particular “Area of Interest” that is not reflected here, but we may be doing work in that regard. Contact us for more information.

World Vision is grateful to collaborate with Rotary across the globe. Together, we have impacted the lives of hundreds of thousands of children and families in need.

World Vision and Rotary have collaborated on additional projects, including disaster relief, emergency aid, microfinance, water, and solar pump technology in Ethiopia, Ghana, Haiti, Japan, and Nicaragua.

Future activities are planned in Ethiopia, India, Niger, Uganda, Zambia, and other locations.

To discuss how your club can get involved, contact your World Vision Rotary Liaison.

WorldVision is a Christian humanitarian organization dedicated to working with children, families, and their communities worldwide to reach their full potential by tackling the causes of poverty and injustice. WorldVision serves all people, regardless of religion, race, ethnicity, or gender.

As a signatory to the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Code of Conduct, WorldVision does not proselytize. We are a Christian organization, motivated by our faith to serve the poor; but we do not discriminate on the basis of religion in giving aid; we serve every child in need that we possibly can, of any faith or none. Our work is carried out in many countries where the majority of people follow another religion. We have programs in these countries with the approval of local, regional, and national governments. In all cases, we respect the local culture and abide by local laws.
