WHAT IS AN OPEN WORLD DELEGATION?

The Open World program brings current and future leaders from post-Soviet countries to the United States. Delegates complete an intensive, short-term program that relates to their professional or civic work. Observing their professional counterparts in the U.S., they get a firsthand look at the American system of democracy and free enterprise. Rotary clubs in the United States can participate in the program, which is managed by the Open World Leadership Center and funded by Congress.

Rotary districts or clubs prepare an eight-day program that's designed around an Open World civic theme, such as: • Accountable governance • NGO development • Higher education and innovation • Social issues, focusing on health care provision and social services including special education • Entrepreneurship and Innovation The program emphasizes professional development, exchange, and cooperation. Key concepts include transparency, accountability, civic initiative, and volunteerism.

Leadership Moment

“True heroism is remarkably sober, very undramatic. It is not the urge to surpass all others at whatever the cost, but the urge to serve others at whatever the cost.”
