

Meet Matt Albertson

Introduction by Joel Paget

I have the privilege of introducing our newest member, Matt Albertson, classification Non-Profit - Media. Matt was sponsored by Jerilyn Brusseau and Mark Davis, who we gratefully thank.

As the major gifts officer at KUOW radio, Matt is involved in matching donors' philanthropic goals with Puget Sound Public Radio's strategic priorities. In case you do not know, KUOW's license is owned by the University of Washington, the license having been gifted to it by the Bullitt family 64 years ago. It has a board of directors which ensures that it fulfills its mission of creating and serving an informed public. Their program content is available all over the world through digital streaming. It has local reporters who concentrate on regional current events and companies such as Amazon and Google. It uses social media sites to engage even more of the public. Join the KUOW community by listening in the old fashion way or by a public radio app.

Matt became acquainted with Seattle Rotary through the Peace Trees project. He and his wife Sarah-Marie have participated in food harvest event. He believes that Seattle Rotary will provide him a way to impact the community beyond the Puget Sound area.

Matt and his spouse live in Bothell where he grew up. Sarah-Marie is an elementary school vice-principal in the North Shore School District. Matt has a B.A. and Master's degree from the UW.

Please give a warm welcome to Matt Albertson, classification Non-Profit - Media.
