

News Both Fit and Unfit

Guest Speaker:

The Insulation Man is a full service Home Performance Contracting Business that was established in 1989. We provide effective building envelope solutions for new construction and retrofits of older homes and businesses within an 80 mile radius of Binghamton, NY. We offer technical assistance with home performance issues concerning moisture, heat loss, and indoor air quality. We use

Diagnostic Equipment and our own experience and knowledge to find problems and recommend solutions. Once the problems are found we use urethane foam, cellulose, and other materials to repair faults in the building envelope. We also use subcontractors to repair or replace HVAC equipment and distribution systems, windows, and doors.

The company founder, Pat Dundon, started the business in 1989 and has become recognized as an industry expert. Pat has developed home solutions that are now acknowledged and installed by other contractors all over the country. Pat Dundon is still employed by The Insulation Man and we feel very fortunate to have him on board as we move into the future.

In September of 2015, The Insulation Man was purchased by two existing employees, Susan Gahagan and David Currie. The company is now an LLC and we are in the process of achieving WBE status. The new owners have a vision that foresees our products and services expanding and the overall company growing to include much more than what was offered in the past. The New York State Small Business Development Center (SBDC) recently released an article describing Susan and Dave's journey of becoming business owners.
