TODAY'S SPEAKER

TERRY ZIGLER - END POLIO NOW ZONE COORDINATOR

Terry Ziegler is a native Houstonian who graduated with an Honors Studies degree in microbiology from Texas Tech University in 1974. He is married with two girls. He is the owner of Big Z Lumber Company; a family business operating in Houston since 1938. A Rotarian since 1982, Terry served in 1988-89 as president of the Astrodome Rotary Club. He again served as president in 2004-05 after a move to the West U Rotary Club. In his year as West U president, his club was awarded the "Best Large Club" in District 5890 and "Family of Rotary" awards by District Governor, D'Lisa Simmons and was awarded the "RI Publicity Award" by Rotary International President Glenn Estess. In addition, Terry attended a baseball game for physically & mentally challenged youth on the White House lawn with President George W. Bush as a result of the West U Rotary Club's Centennial Project.

Terry is the Rotary Foundation Chari for the District. He is a multiple Paul Harris Fellow, a Charter Benefactor Society member and a Charter Paul Harris Society member. Terry and Sarka are Rotary Foundation Major Donors and all of his family members are Paul Harris Fellows.

In his spare time, Terry enjoys playing table tennis, bicycling, cheering for the Astros.

Or the short version – Terry Ziegler was asked to join Rotary in 1982, fell in love with it, and has been having trouble saying no since then.

Jonas Salk, MD—The New Yorker Who Tamed Polio

Polio threatened children every summer in the first half of the twentieth century. The viral infection spread from person to person, infecting millions. For 1 in 200 infected, the disease would progress to a paralytic phase, stopping them from breathing. By the 1940s, President Franklin D. Roosevelt — a polio survivor himself — helped the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis raise enough funds to financially support several vaccination efforts.

One of those efforts was led by Jonas Edward Salk, MD. Jonas was the son of Jewish immigrants, and he was born in New York City. As the first person in his family to go to college, Jonas stood out because of his intellect. He earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry in 1934 from City College of New York, and his medical degree in 1939 from New York University Medical School. As a physician scientist, Dr. Salk worked with Thomas Francis at the University of Michigan in 1941. (Thomas Francis was known for the discovery of influenza viruses and their multiple types.)

The prevailing theory of vaccines at the time was that the pathogen used in creating the vaccine had to be attenuated (weakened to the point of being incapable of causing disease). Scientists disagreed whether a killed virus would trigger an immune response. Building on the work of scientists like Elise Ward (who developed a way to grow polio virus in non-human tissue cultures) and Isabel Morgan (who successfully immunized primates with killed polio virus), Jonas Salk successfully developed a polio vaccine by the mid-1950s.

During a series of community trials of the vaccine in 1954 and 1955, the Salk vaccine was found to be highly effective in preventing polio disease in children. Children randomized into the vaccine group had a lower rate of symptomatic polio than children randomized into the placebo group. The success of the trials was shared far and wide around the world, as the scourge of polio that had frightened many parents was about to be conquered.

After the success of the polio vaccine, Dr. Salk opened the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in 1963. He dedicated his life to researching other vaccines, including a vaccine against HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. He received numerous awards and honors for his work. Dr. Salk died at the age of 80 and is buried in San Diego, California.
