TODAY'S PROGRAM

Program Chair of the Day: Tracy Gomes

Hillcrest Ethics Faire Winners Ethics

from RI President Robert I Hill's address to the Convention, June 17, 1955.

"We shall consider at this convention the great problems which are confronting the world today, and we shall discuss frankly and candidly and in the best of spirit the methods which we shall follow in carving out the program of our organization. One item uppermost in our minds is the business trend. Years ago Rotary International launched upon a program to bring about a better condition in business. We were certain then, and are confident now, that where there are good men in business, lying and cheating should be more difficult, truth and candor and fair dealing should be easier and more popular. Where there are good men in society, grossness of thought and speech ought to stand rebuked, high ideals and chivalrous actions and all that makes a man ought to seem at once more desirable and more attainable to every one who comes on contact with them. There is a loftier ambition than merely to stand high in the world. It is to stoop down and lift other men a little higher.

And the Winners Are ...

Polio Survivors Live A Life Of Mobility Thanks To Rotary Support

Outside a building in a village in Burkina Faso (West Africa), a young girl on crutches is making her way out onto the street. In front of her home is a new wheelchair-child-sized, brightly painted and specially adapted to the unpaved streets of her neighbourhood.

Countries around the world are united in their efforts to eradicate polio so that it will never again cause a child to be paralyzed. This is (cont on pg. 3)

President Pam remarked that the RCPC Foundation also had contributed six computers for use by the residents of the Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center. President Pam also announced that 2017-18 Club Directories were ready. She thanked PP Fred Brown, Dennis Harrison, Barb Jeffries and Elaine Allen for their work on the directories. plained that he is a member of the Salesmanship Club, which was founded in 1920 by some of the civic leaders of Dallas, and that kids are at the heart of what Salesmanship does. The proceeds of the Tournament will of to the Momentous Institute, which operates a school in Oak Cliff. The school addresses poverty and toxic stress by making the kids feel safe and regulated. The children need to be heard and to feel connected for better emotional health. The ask the parents for their vision of what the child will be as an adult, so they are better able to work with the parents. With the internet, information is available to everyone, so they want to teach the children how to think, not what to think. They are also teaching their strategies to teachers from around the country. Salesmanship also operates two mental health centers, one in Oak Cliff and one in West Dallas. The ATT Byron Nelson Tournament is now on a one-of-a-kind golf course; it was created on an old landfill so there are no trees and no water, even though it is surrounded by the Trinity Forest. The course is laid out with golf on every side, rather than in a semi-circle. There are no tee boxes, but tee areas. If the wind is coming from the Southwest, it is a very difficult course. The tournament has an economic impact of $41 Million. The main entry is on Loop 12; spectators will park at the State Fair and ride a bus over. There are venues all over the course; they knew they needed shade and air conditioning. They will have lots of grand venues with great views. Tickets will be $45.00. The Tournament has new premier sponsors, but they also have partnerships with organizations and businesses in the southern part of Dallas.

Ethics

Ethical axioms are found and tested not very differently from the axioms of science. Truth is what stands the test of experience.

~ Albert Einstein

The needs of society determine its ethics.

~ Maya Angelou

Ethics is not definable, is not implementable, because it is not conscious; it involves not only our thinking, but also our feeling.

~ Valdemar W. Setzer

Examine each question in terms of what is ethically and aesthetically right, as well as what is economically expedient. A thing is right when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the biotic community. It is wrong when it tends otherwise.

~ Aldo Leopold

Ethics, too, are nothing but reverence for life. That is what gives me the fundamental principle of morality, namely, that good consists in maintaining, promoting, and enhancing life, and that destroying, injuring, and limiting life are evil.

~ Albert Schweitzer

('Mobility' cont. from pg. 1) important For polio survivors in Burkina Faso, the opportunity to be independently mobile in their own communities can be life changing.

For children living in poor communities whose limbs are paralyzed by polio, there is often very little support available to make them independently mobile. Giving a child a wheelchair puts previously inaccessible opportunities within reach so that children can reach their potential; going to school, playing outside with friends and learning new skills.

Rotary International, along with their local partners to provide services and facilities for children, teenagers, young mothers and people with disabilities often caused by polio.

The tricycles are very sturdy and custom-made by people with disabilities. They are hand-cranked by the individuals to navigate the difficult roads of Burkina Faso. A wider version is available for adults riding with children.

HE PROFITS MOST WHO LAUGHS BEST

A young hiker comes upon a Monastery in the woods. He stops for directions, but is invited inside for lunch. After lunch he exclaimed that this was the best fish and chips lunch he had ever eaten. Seeing a chef emerge from the kitchen, he asked, "Are you the Fish Friar? To which the reply was, "No, I am the Chip Monk."
