The Four-Way Test

of the things we think, say or do:

1. Is it the truth?
2. Is it fair to all concerned?
3. Will it build good will and better friendships?
4. Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

The Object of Rotary is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster First: the development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service;

Second: high ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his/her occupation as an opportunity to serve society; Third: the application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his/her personal business and community life;

Fourth: the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional persons united in the ideal of service.

Created in 1932 by
Rotarian Herbert J. Taylor

Ron Galaviz presented the State Police program on identity theft. The program included material on avoiding I T and dealing with it if or when it happens. In today's world there are many forms of identity theft from simple trash-picking and theft from mailboxes to Internet schemes and scams. Best to be very careful in all financial dealings and anywhere when verification of identity is involved.

Bill Harris, with the skilled counter foil provided by President Dee, explained about the challenge thrown down by the Anthony Wayne Club. We are asked to compete with AWC in a fund raising walk/run they are holding in August. I think it is safe to say we are challenged but not frightened. We have a few secret weapons are our disposal including greater numbers. (Your editor as already volunteered to get involved...as photographer taking corrupted pictures in case we need an unfair advantage. Photoshop is SO much FUN!!

From President Dee:

Below is Jason Daenen's first blog entry for Rotary trip to Ghana.

His blog address is: <http://rotaryafricaproject.blogspot.com/>

Greetings from Ghana!

Good evening to all of you folks in the US. I am happy to finally have an opportunity to provide my first official update! I trust all is well back home.

I am new at blogging, but I really want to do my best at creating an informative and interesting blog for anyone who is able and interested in following along. If you have questions, post them here - I will certainly reply as soon as I am able. The Internet access in the Hotel is not really the most dependable and we have also found that the electricity is not either....

These postings will provide you a brief glimpse of my first impressions of Accra, Ghana. I will take you through a quick summary of my first day in the Country and move expeditiously into day two where the adventure truly begins! My hope is to give a good representation of my perceptions of the culture and the overall feel of this truly incredible part of the World.

After an eleven hour flight from Atlanta, I arrived in Accra, Ghana at 12PM on Tuesday Nov 3. Although I did not sleep much on the plane, I felt rested and energetic enough to take in the surroundings, but I have to admit I was not necessarily running on all engines so to speak.

The first day in Accra was very informal. We were transported to our hotel, the Novotel in Accra. The bus ride from the airport was fairly quick. I was quickly taken in by the amount of locals in the streets selling products. They were literally walking between lanes selling everything under the sun. They would tap on our windows and yell at us trying to get us to buy their products. I found out later that many of the people working in the streets come from slums located within and just outside Accra. The median income in Ghana is approximately $1.25 per day. (More accurate data later). Many of the locals I saw working in the streets are earning money for their families who live in small shanty towns. It is common for extended families to have one "bread winner" in the family to feed the whole family. More later on the local economy, but I thought should insert a bit of the local economic situation.

After our quick trek to the hotel and a little time to refresh after the long flight, I met with the rest of the Rotary group. For those of you who do not already know, I am here with approximately 28 other Rotarians who have traveled here from North America. Most of the group is made up of Americans, and we have a few from Canada.

After our orientation, we all went to the hotel lounge to spend some time in fellowship. We were all very tired and worn out from our travels, so the evening closed up at around 9:30PM local time. For day two we will visit one of the local markets, do a little site seeing, a West African Rotary meeting/welcome, and go to a political briefing at the US Embassy in Ghana.

Day two is coming – phew, I am sooo exhausted. BUT LOVING IT!!!!!!!!!!
