*Jim Salmo is a
Post-Dispatch newspaper boy . . .*

AN ALL-AMERICAN BOY

He is also a successful businessboy. Jim sells more than 100 Post-Dispatch newspapers every day at the corner of Meramec and Virginia avenues. Jim, the son of Angelo and Dorothy Salmo, has five brothers and four sisters. He "likes to read about the world and people." Maybe that's why he's such a success selling the Post-Dispatch to a large and loyal following of informed readers. Jim wants to become a teacher because he likes geography. Either that or become a policeman "because they're active." He is, too, with baseball, swimming, bike riding and rock 'n roll. An All-American Boy.
