What is "scarelore"? It's a term that covers the wild misinformation that flies around the Internet and leads credulous people to believe things that simply are not true.

"Scarelore" existed before the Internet, of course. It's why people burned witches. But the Internet, combined with the rise of echo-chamber mass media, makes propagating "scarelore" much easier. Before reposting something, fact check it as if you were publishing it in a book, or newspaper. Remember, even when deleted, anything you post on the internet is there forever.

1910 "He Profits Most Who Serves Best," was first expressed at Rotary's very first Convention in Chicago.

When Hearst Artist Frederic Remington, cabled from Cuba in 1897 that "there will be no war," William Randolph Hearst cabled back: "You furnish the pictures and I'll furnish the war."
