Will Johnson Chief, Arlington Police Department

Will Johnson, Police Chief joined the Arlington Police Department in January 1997 and promoted through the ranks to assistant chief in 2008 and to Police Chief in March, 2013. Will has 19 years of law enforcement experience specifically in administration, operations, investigations, and homeland security and special events.

Chief Johnson was the lead planner and incident commander for the 2010 NBA All-Star game, 2010 and 2011 World Series, and Super Bowl XLV which was played 2011. Arlington Texas is the home of the Dallas Cowboys football team and Texas Rangers baseball team.

Will is a Police Executive Research Forum Executive Fellow, and published author. During his fellowship he developed a use of force accountability model which focused on bridging informational silos within departments to create a culture of integrity. He also conducted research concerning custodial deaths occurring after the use of a conducted energy device (CED), more commonly known as a Taser ®. Will has published multiple articles related to force accountability and police management and has lectured as a professional expert on both topics. Will is a 2013 recipient of the Gary P. Hayes Award.

Chief Johnson holds a Master's from Texas Christian University in Liberal Arts and a Bachelor of Arts from Texas Tech University in History. He is a graduate of the FBI National Academy 245th Session where he was elected Session President, the Senior Management Institute for Police, the FBI's Command Institute for Law Enforcement Executives, and the Texas Law Enforcement Management Institute's 45th Leadership Command College. Chief Johnson is married to his wife Laura and has two daughters.

Please join us in a Warm Sunrise Rotary Welcome for Chief Will Johnson.

A Cat pounced on a Rooster, and cast about for some good excuse for making a meal off him, for Cats don't as a rule eat Roosters, and she knew she ought not to. At last she said, "You make a great nuisance of yourself at night by crowing and keeping people awake: so I am going to make an end of you." But the Rooster defended himself by saying that he crowed in order that men might wake up and set about the day's work in good time, and that they really couldn't very well do without him. "That may be," said the Cat, "but whether they can or not, I'm not going without my dinner"; and she killed and ate him.

Moral: The want of a good excuse never kept a villain from crime.
