

Who's a ROTARIAN?

She's a person
in your neighborhood.

If your impression of a Rotary is that it's "a bunch of old guys having lunch together once a week" ... think again!

Rotarians are 1.2 million neighbors, friends, and community leaders who come together to create positive, lasting change in our communities and around the world.

Rotarians are people like DENISE STUART – longtime Haddonfield resident, popular soloist at the Methodist Church, and director of development for Symphony in C (formerly Haddonfield Symphony), the mid-Atlantic region's premier professional training orchestra and music education program.

Talk to Denise about Symphony in C and she might just burst into a song – that's how much she loves music and how filled she is with enthusiasm for the organization's programs.

"People have an impression that classical music is old and stodgy," says Denise. "Nothing could be further from the truth. Classical music is being written today. It's music that is complex, involving, has depth but can also be light and fun."

The same holds true for Rotary, Denise says. "I've been a member of the Rotary Club of Haddonfield since 2013. I've had experiences and developed bonds of friendship I never anticipated, with people who do things you would never imagine, or might not even know existed. Right here in Haddonfield!"

"They're people who share my desire and drive to give back," she says. "People who enjoy getting together each week to discuss our community's needs and explore creative ways to meet them." Doing good and having fun doing it – locally, regionally, and around the world.

"I'm so glad I joined," says Denise. "Rotary's wonderful!"
