Haddonfield Day at the Dinosaur Park – Saturday, October 18 – is a day and evening event at the Edelman Fossil Park & Museum of Rowan University, to benefit the Rotary Club of Haddonfield Foundation.

The Edelman site is a 65-acre former marl quarry in Mantua Township. It includes a museum with immersive galleries, full-scale reconstructions of extinct creatures, exhibits explaining the extinction of the dinosaurs, virtual reality and hands-on experiences, and a working quarry from which over 100,000 fossils of land and marine animals from the late Cretaceous period have been unearthed.

Daytime activities on Haddonfield Day will include Museum tours, quarry digs, and educational activities.

Evening activities include elegant mingling, munching, music, and Museum visits.
