Why iPads?

Research has determined that autistic children who have difficulty communicating can have their communication skills improved dramatically with iPads.

Older tools such as cards or even regular computer screens are limited in keeping the autistic user interested. The touch screen and layout make the iPad easier to use for individuals with coordination or learning difficulties. Typing is not required, as many apps feature bright, colorful icons that are manipulated by tapping and sliding. The iPad can help individuals with autism improve basic social, fine motor, language and communication skills. Users learn to communicate and express themselves with their iPad without the frustration they commonly experience.

The Willoughby Rotary Foundation's Plan

The Willoughby Rotary Foundation is a 501(c)3 charitable organization that has contributed over $250,000 to Rotary International humanitarian programs and more than 30 Ohio charitable causes since 1998.

Our members voted to help families in our community affected by autism by providing iPads and information on appropriate apps.

To provide a unique way to generate awareness and revenue, Rotarian Dan Ruminski volunteered to lead our efforts. Dan is "Cleveland's Storyteller," educating people on the rarely known but spectacular history of Cleveland, Ohio.

His series of "WRAP Cleveland History Talks" feature dinner and spellbinding stories, have attracted sponsors, and raised thousands for autism.
