LAST WEEK'S PROGRAM

Our own Marc Schaffer (TSD Superintendent), treated members to a story about his recent exploits while on an immersive philanthropic trip to Central America, where he worked with other volunteers (educators) to finish construction on a new school building made of walls of recycled plastic bottles (filled with litter) that would later be encased in concrete. He related what was a highly rewarding experience in the visually stunning, though simple (developing) country of Guatemala. They interacted with the local community, exchanged teaching techniques with local teachers, and enjoyed plenty of rice and beans, a staple of the local cuisine.
