PROGRAM

Scoot Childers introduced today's speaker, Stan Matsunaka, who spoke to the club about Japanese-Americans in Colorado in World War II, including the Amache Internment Camp in far Southeastern Colorado near Granada. Stan made the point that the treatment of these Japanese in Colorado was quite different than in other states. Then Colorado Governor Ralph Carr did not assign any Coloradoans to Amache and welcomed the Japanese Americans from the coasts to the camp. The camp was very clean, and its residents were polite and quiet. It had dirt floors with 3 families per barrack. Things like Boy Scouts, dances, and parties for the young were all allowed, and the residents were even allowed to form their own local government, including their own police and fire departments, as well as a local newspaper, school, hospital, baseball and football teams, movies and music programs. Because they were residents of Colorado, Stan's family was not required to live in Camp Amache. The camp, now a National Historic Site, will soon become a National Park. Stan also told of the 442nd Infantry Regimental Combat team, formed in 1943 of Japanese American volunteers, including 1,500 from US internment camps (as well as Stan's father). Its motto was "Go for Broke". Thanks for an entertaining and enlightening program, Stan!
