"The top two reasons people join Rotary are to meet new people and to get involved in their communities. Many of the non-Rotarians you know are looking for the same things. Invite them to help with a service project, attend a networking night, or participate in a club gathering so they can see for themselves how Rotary connects leaders to make positive change.

Consider these potential candidates for membership:

- Friends and family members
- Business and professional acquaintances
- Younger community leaders who are already connected to Rotary through Rotaract, RYLA, peace fellowships, Youth Exchange, and other programs."

MEET OUR 2016-17 CLUB PRESIDENT STACEY VANDEN HEUVEL

Stacey Vanden Heuvel serves as Vice President for Marketing and Philanthropy at Olmsted Medical Center (OMC). She is responsible for OMC's branding, marketing, media relations, communications, and community outreach efforts. Stacey serves as the administrative liaison to OMC's Caring Partners Volunteer Program, and she chairs OMC's Community Investment Advisory Committee, which makes financial grants to area not-for-profit organizations that meet OMC's funding criteria.

Ms. Vanden Heuvel also provides leadership for OMC Foundation, a 501(c)3 not-for-profit Regional organization that exists to advocate for and support Olmsted Medical Center and assist it in funding quality healthcare services and education in OMC communities. She enjoys working with benefactors to advance the mission of OMC through gifts of time, talent, and treasure. "In my day job and in my volunteer work, I have the privilege to work with people who share their philanthropic gifts to improve the quality of life for people in their communities and in the world," she says. "It is truly a privilege to help others shape and accomplish their goals for giving to make a positive difference and to serve others."

She is the 2016-2017 President of The Rotary Club of Rochester and has been a member of Rotary since 2001. She has served Rotary in the past as International Service Director, Secretary, and Youth Exchange host parent.

Stacey has been a parent leader in Olmsted County 4-H and a volunteer for the Minnesota 4-H Foundation. She is also a member of the Association of Healthcare Philanthropy, the Minnesota Planned Giving Council, and the Association of Fundraising Professionals (AFP), and she was awarded the Outstanding Fundraising Professional Award by the AFP Southern Minnesota in 2013.

Ms. Vanden Heuvel earned her BA from Augustana University (SD) and a MA in Philanthropy and Development from Saint Mary's University of Minnesota. She also completed graduate courses in international economics at the National University of Malaysia.

Originally from Rock Rapids, IA, Stacey has lived in Sioux Falls, SD; Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; St. Paul, MN; and Mitchell, SD. She has lived in Rochester, MN, since 1998. Stacey is married to Rashid Kadir, and together they have a daughter, Amanina.

JOHN GERM: CHAMPION OF CHATTANOOGA

From the July 2016 issue of The Rotarian

Just before John Germ dropped by, Rick Youngblood took a deep breath. "You want to match his energy," he says, "but he makes it hard to keep up." Youngblood is the president and CEO of Blood Assurance, a regional blood bank in Chattanooga, Tenn., that Germ helped found in 1972. After his visit with Youngblood, Germ strode between mountains of empty bottles and cans at Chattanooga's John F. Germ Recycling Center at Orange Grove, which he designed, before he drove to a construction site and popped a cork to dedicate a Miracle League field where special needs children will play baseball – all before zipping to the airport for a flight to Chicago and a cab ride to Rotary International World Headquarters, where he takes office as president of RI this month.

Why the breakneck pace? "I don't have hobbies," he says. "Civic work is my recreation."

Not long ago Germ, 77, spent a raucous evening at the Chattanooga Convention Center, enjoying jokes at his expense. "John is a very influential person," his friend Harry Fields announced from the podium. "I can't tell you how many people emulate him ... at Halloween. I mean, he's the epitome of tall, dark, and handsome. When it's dark, he's handsome!" Nobody laughed harder than the guest of honor at the celebration of his contributions, which was referred to as the "roast of John Germ." The dinner raised more than $75,000 for Chattanooga State Community College. In closing, Fields noted Germ's contribution to his community and the world: "100 percent of himself – and everyone else he can shake down!"

A legendary fundraiser, Germ led Rotary's $200 Million Challenge, an effort sparked by a challenge grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. Rotarians ultimately exceeded that number, raising $228.7 million to fight polio. He has already served Rotary as vice president and director, and The Rotary Foundation as vice chair and trustee. His contributions to the fight to eradicate polio led to his selection as one of 12 U.S. Rotarians honored at the White House in 2013 as a "Champion of Change" – someone who has improved

RI PRESIDENT GERM REVEALS "ROTARY SERVING HUMANITY" AS 2016-17 PRESIDENTIAL THEME

Taken from Rotary News, 18-Jan-2016, by Ryan Hyland, https://www.rotary.org/myrotary/en/news-media/news- features/germ-reveals-rotary-serving-humanity-2016-17-presidential-theme Rotary's founder, Paul Harris, believed that serving humanity is "the most worthwhile thing a person can do," RI President-elect John F. Germ said, and that being a part of Rotary is a "great opportunity" to make that happen.

Germ unveiled the 2016-17 presidential theme, Rotary Serving Humanity, to incoming district governors on 18 January at the International Assembly in San Diego, California, USA.

"I believe everyone recognizes the opportunity to serve Rotary for what it truly is: not a small opportunity, but a great one; an opportunity of a lifetime to change the world for the better, forever through Rotary's service to humanity," said Germ.

Rotary members around the globe are serving humanity by providing clean water to underdeveloped communities, promoting peace in conflict areas, and strengthening communities through basic education and literacy. But none more important than our work to eradicate polio worldwide, he said.

After a historic year in which transmission of the wild poliovirus was stopped in Nigeria and all of Africa, Germ said we are closer than ever to ending polio.

"We are at a crossroads in Rotary," he added. "We are looking ahead at a year that may one day be known as the greatest year in Rotary's history: the year that sees the world's last case of polio."

Last year's milestones leave just two countries, Afghanistan and Pakistan, where the virus still circulates. Polio would be only the second human disease ever to be eradicated.

When that moment arrives, it's "tremendously important" that Rotary is ready for it, said Germ. "We need to be sure that we are recognized for that success, and leverage that success into more partnerships, greater growth, and even more ambitious service in the decades to come."

Germ, a member of the Rotary Club of Chattanooga, Tennessee, USA, encouraged attendees to return to their clubs and communities and spread the word about Rotary's role in the fight for a polio-free world.

"People who want to do good will see that Rotary is a place where they can change the world. Every Rotary club needs to be ready to give them that opportunity," Germ said.

Enhancing Rotary's image isn't the only way to boost membership. "We need clubs that are flexible, so our service will be more attractive to younger members, recent retirees, and working people."

He added: "We need more willing hands, more caring hearts, and more bright minds to move our work forward."

communities around the world. As president, Germ chose three simple, no-nonsense words to be the theme of his year: Rotary Serving Humanity.

"Rotary has kept its light under a bushel for too long," he says. "We need to do a better job of promoting our cause. That's the challenge ahead, but I don't see it as a problem. I don't believe in problems – I believe in opportunities."

The son of a stonemason, who built the family home with his own hands, excavating its foundation with a shovel and a wheelbarrow, Germ developed his work ethic early in life. Nothing came easily. Other schoolboys made fun of his name – "they called me 'Bacteria' " – and his parents couldn't afford college tuition. After a stint in vocational school, he paid his way through the University of Tennessee at Knoxville by working in a machine shop and serving food in a dorm cafeteria. After graduating, he joined the U.S. Air Force. Soon promoted to captain, he was navigator on a 50-ton Douglas C-124, ferrying troops and tanks to Vietnam. "Unfortunately," he says, "we flew home with soldiers' bodies." In 1965 Germ's C-124 carried the Gemini IV space capsule to Cape Kennedy. On another mission, the giant plane lost two engines and skimmed the ocean, shaking like a bumper car all the way back to base. "When we landed, we found seaweed hanging off the fuselage," he says. "That's how close we came to a watery grave."

When Germ's military service ended, he joined engineering firm Campbell & Associates in his hometown. His boss, George Campbell, liked the young flier's can-do attitude. "Within 10 years," Germ told him, "I'll either own some of this company or I'll be your biggest competitor." He wasn't wrong. He eventually became chairman and CEO of the firm, which went on to serve Chattanooga's airport, its most prominent hospital, several downtown high-rises, and the Convention Center. One of his challenges was a new cineplex, where the owner gave him a warning that puzzled him at first: "Don't make the air conditioning too good."

Germ asked, "Why not?"

"Because the customers need to smell the popcorn; we make most of our money at the concession stand."

As president, Germ wants to "find the popcorn smell that'll bring people to Rotary. And what is that? Service. We've got a service-minded generation coming up. We've got to get our message out to them, and we'd better do it fast."

Part of that message, he says, is that polio hasn't been eradicated yet. We may be "this close," but there were still 74 cases worldwide last year (all in Pakistan and Afghanistan). His own father was struck with the disease as an adult. "We were on a fishing trip when my brother said, 'Daddy can't walk,'" Germ recalls. "We carried him back to the car. Doctors said he'd never stand up again, but he did exercises. He tied an iron weight to his leg and tried to lift it. Little by little he got to where he could lift that weight and wave it around. He walked with a limp after that, but he walked." Germ thinks he inherited a little of his father's stubbornness. "I don't give up easily either," he says.

He's certainly not giving up on supporting polio eradication - and he's calling on Rotarians to follow his lead by urging every Rotary club to give at least $2,650 to fight polio during his term, which is also The Rotary Foundation's centennial year. The number commemorates the first donation – of $26.50, made by the Rotary Club of Kansas City, Mo., in 1917 - to the Foundation. During the 2017 Rotary International Convention, a birthday celebration is also planned for Arch Klumph with tickets costing $26.50. If that all sounds a little gimmicky, fine. "If we can get people to pay attention," Germ says, "they'll see that Rotary is doing great things in the world."

While preparing for his presidential term, he stayed in touch with friends and allies – often from the nerve center of his world, a maroon leather La-Z-Boy recliner in his comfortable home on the Tennessee River. He designed the house himself. He hangs corncobs on the poplars out back to feed the squirrels that run around his porch. His desk holds a photo of Germ dressed as Elvis Presley, entertaining at a district conference, and a plaque his wife brought home from the local Hobby Lobby. The plaque reads, "Integrity is doing the right thing when no one else is watching." "It made me think of John," says Judy Germ.

Since her husband of 57 years became president-elect last fall, "Rotary has consumed our lives," she says. "In a good way."

His presidency marks the apex of a life devoted to service. Previously active in the Jaycees, Germ joined the Rotary Club of Chattanooga in 1976. A natural leader and inveterate schmoozer, he has set fundraising records for Rotary and other organizations. The Blood Assurance program grew from a single blood draw into a regional network that supplies over 70 health centers in the Southeast with more than 100,000 units a year. It began when the United Way sent three doctors to the Chattanooga Jaycees to seek help with a blood shortage, recalls Germ's friend and co-founder of Blood Assurance, Dan Johnson. "John was the Jaycees president and I was treasurer, so I got to watch him in action," Johnson says. "When he goes to work, he never looks back. From nothing, we grew to our current budget of $29 million." With help from Germ, Johnson, and others, Blood Assurance got its message out: Donating a pint of blood is a painless way to spend 30 minutes and save three lives.

"We owe much of our success to John Germ," says Youngblood. "To me, he epitomizes three aspects of leadership: He's a gentleman at all times, he's compassionate to all people, and he's an achiever. If John can't get something done, it probably can't be done."

According to Fields, Germ's success as a fundraiser comes from his out-of-the-box thinking. "Go back to the '90s, when he was district governor. People thought of him as Mr. Chattanooga. We bought a barrel of Jack Daniel's whiskey in honor of [well-known Tennessee Rotarian] Bill Sergeant. A barrel is 266 bottles' worth, so we gave one bottle from that barrel to anyone who donated $1,000, and we raised $250,000." The two men have often tended bar for charity, wearing matching aprons marked "Bar" and "Tender." "My friend John is my greatest hero," says Fields.

At the recycling plant Germ converted from a rundown dairy in 1989, adults with developmental disabilities sort tons of recyclables into great stacks of bottles and cans. "He has been involved in every bit of what happens here, from engineering the building to helping us negotiate contracts with the city," says Tera Roberts, director of adult services for the center. Few of the employees would have a job if not for the recycling center, and they can keep anything interesting they come across. One worker found a crumpled $100 bill.

To finance the city's new Miracle League field, one of the best-equipped in the country, Germ enlisted cosponsors including Berkshire Hathaway, BlueCross BlueShield, and his own Rotary Club of Chattanooga. "Every kid should be able to play sports," he says. "It's not just for the child, but the whole family. What's better than a child hearing his mom and dad cheer when he plays?" Another of his causes, the First in the Family program at Chattanooga State, provides scholarships for students who couldn't attend college otherwise. Flora Tydings, the school's president, calls Germ "an excellent role model to many of our students who, like him, are the first in their family to attend college."

Today his schedule changes daily – sometimes hourly – as he keeps up with the duties of his new office. On his agenda, he says he would like to see Rotary operate more like a business. "We've been getting leaner, and I'd like to speed that up. In January, for instance, we're going to hold our Board meeting in Chicago instead of San Diego. That means we won't have to fly a couple dozen staff members to San Diego and put them up there. It's just common sense." He wants to shorten Board meetings, shrink some RI committees, and save money on committee meetings to make Rotary more cost-effective.

Half a century after landing his last C-124, Germ sees himself as Rotary's navigator, plotting a course toward a bright future. "It's going to be a team effort," he says. His main target after polio will be Rotary's static membership. On that issue, he says, "The fault is with us, the current Rotarians." He wants members to "step up their outreach. I really think one of our main problems is that we don't ask enough people to join. Why? For fear of rejection. We need to get over that – to get out there and bring in new members we'll be proud of."

To appeal to younger members, he supports a new move (approved at the Council on Legislation in April) that allows membership in Rotaract and Rotary at the same time. "I'm all in favor of that," he says.

It doesn't stop there. Germ supports flexibility in many Rotary matters. "Our clubs have always been organized around a meal. Lunch and dinner were part of our dues, and that system served us well. But society has changed," he says. Rotary International is catching up by allowing clubs more leeway in when and how they meet. "How do we accommodate the 30-year-old businessperson raising a family? Well, for one thing, we could pay less attention to attendance," he adds. "My question isn't 'How many meetings did you make?' It's 'How are you making a difference in your community?' "
