Camp Boggy Creek

When applied to kids, words such as “have fun”, “laugh”, “play”, “make friends”, “be you”, “be a kid”, and “be happy above all” fit right in with Rotary’s mission to help children.

Tuesday’s speaker, Sharon Couture, a representative of Camp Boggy Creek, provided us with an update on the camp’s mission, history, and achievements. Now in its twenty third year, Camp Boggy Creek came about when Jennifer Macy, an eleven year old brain cancer patient in Fort Lauderdale, found herself increasingly isolated, in part from always being told no, you can’t do that. Her parents responded by sending her to Paul Newman’s newly established Hole in the Wall Camp in Connecticut, where, after ten days, she returned singing, laughing, and with new friends. Jennifer, in turn, challenged her parents to build a similar camp in Florida. Within weeks her parents met with Paul Newman and Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, as sponsors, and proceeded to set about raising $23,000,000.00.

Camp Boggy Creek receives funding solely by donations, and campers and their families attend free of charge. To be eligible, a camper must be too sick to go someplace else.

Since its founding the camp has served over 76,000 children with serious illnesses and family members. The camp works with fifteen different illness groups.

The camp conducts eight weeks of illness specific summer camp sessions, and 17 illness specific family retreat weekends between September and April. The camp operates year round.

The camp's physical plant includes air conditioned cabins with indoor plumbing, and a state-of-the-art medical facility staffed by volunteer doctors and nurses. Campers needing dialysis are treated for free on Sunday in Sanford. Each attendee also receives an afghan and a Boggy Bear which many cherish for years afterward.
