

Freshman: Nikolas Wilson
Nominating Teacher Robert Rojas

Nikolas shows great compassion in the classroom as he is never hesitant to help a student in need. Niko has a great understanding of direction and is always the first one to pass on extra instruction for those who do not understand completely. I have seen Niko work well in groups and take charge. There have been multiple times in class where Niko offers his assistance to help others.

Sophomore – Emily Hatch
Nominating Teacher: Tina Fox

Emily moved from another class during the year and fit in very quickly to my class. She sits with another student that sometimes struggles and she made it her mission to help him understand the material being taught.

She will come in with all smiles and worked with this student, knowing she had to have time for her own learning but was able to balance both. She continues to help her classmates and never belittles or calls out the students misconceptions she just continues to encourage always with a smile. You can see the confidence build in this student because of Emily's efforts.

Junior: Cassadi Chase
Nominating Teacher : Amy White

As Key Club president, Cassadi is always looking for opportunities for community service projects. She cares about our community and is very generous with her time.

In November, Cassadi ran the Key Club project of putting together and donating Thanksgiving baskets to over 30 families in the district.

Senior: Evan Grant
February (Compassion and Generosity) from Fred Steeves

One day a couple months ago, Ms. Fox's physics class were shooting air powered rockets from the back corner of the building towards the practice football field. During the event, there was an accident and a rocket went off prematurely and exploded near Ms. Fox. She was thrown back and hit her head on the ground. Evan immediately took charge of the situation. He sent two students to get help. He acquired a couple jackets from other students to cover Ms. Fox so she would not go into shock while waiting for the ambulance. Most importantly, he did not leave her side, he kept talking to her and comforted her, telling her what was happening, help was coming and she would be OK. It makes me proud to say I know this young man.
