Clyne This Moment
Still Symphony No. 4
("Autochthonous")

George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue represented a turning point in classical music and brought a uniquely American sound to the art form, leaving audiences and fellow artists hungry to hear more from this daring young composer. After hearing Rhapsody, Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, immediately commissioned a piano concerto from the composer. The result was the Piano Concerto in F, a spectacular showcase and an exhilarating mix of sinuous jazz, mournful blues, and a bit of Broadway bravura. Performing this American classic is Daniil Trifonov, "one of the finest pianists today," whose "revelatory performances" (The Guardian) leave audiences breathless.

Yannick Nézet-Séguin Conductor

Daniel Matsukawa Bassoon

Berio Four Original Versions of Luigi Boccherini's The Night Retreat of Madrid

Assad Bassoon Concerto (world premiere—Philadelphia Orchestra commission)

Rachmaninoff Symphony No. 1 (Thursday)

Rachmaninoff Symphony No. 2 (Friday and Saturday)

Fan's choice: Pick your performance, pick your Rachmaninoff symphony! Rachmaninoff's dark, brooding First Symphony swirls with drama and mystery, the perfect accompaniment to an autumn night, as the leaves drift along the pavement. His Second Symphony is lushly textured, warm, and melodious.

The concert begins with artists speaking across two centuries, with 20th-century composer Luciano Berio's take on a gem by Baroque master Luigi Boccherini, beautifully capturing the sounds of Madrid at night.

The heart of this brilliantly hued program is the world premiere of a new concerto created for Philadelphia Orchestra Principal Bassoon Daniel Matsukawa by Clarice Assad, a Brazilian-American composer hailed for her evocative colors, rich textures, and stylistic range.

John Williams Conductor

Yo-Yo Ma Cello

Williams Cello Concerto

Williams Selections from film scores

With an astonishing 25 GRAMMY® Awards (out of a staggering 73 nominations) and five Oscars, John Williams is one of the most prolific and beloved film composers of all time, with unforgettable scores including Jaws; Close Encounters of the Third Kind; the Star Wars, Indiana Jones, and Harry Potter films; Schindler's List, and dozens more. But his talents go far beyond the movies.

In this one-night-only performance, Williams conducts a moving, memory-stirring selection of music from his films, and welcomes his long-time friend and 19-time GRAMMY winner Yo-Yo Ma for a performance of his Cello Concerto.

The Concerto transports the listener, from its opening theme “as effective an introduction to a character as the first five minutes of any Spielberg film” (The Washington Post) to its lyrical, poignant finale. It's a rare opportunity to hear two towering artists who have shaped much of the musical world of the past half-century, on stage together in a joyful reunion!
