Hi Denver Mile High Rotarians,

I thought the meeting last week was great. There were so many announcements about Club activities—it really demonstrated the vibrancy the Club. Please choose one or two things that interest you and sign up. Check the calendar on the Club website to make sure that you don't miss anything.

And I understand that there is real progress on the Spring Swing Event next April—the Club's signature event for 2018-19. You will be hearing more about that very soon.

Thanks to all of you who have started to sell citrus this year.

The program on Wednesday should be really interesting. Carrie Olson will discuss the Denver Public Schools Board of Education. It should be fascinating. Thanks Robin for arranging this program. And a special shout-out to Kevin Galloway and Anson Thompson for coordinating interesting speakers week after week.

Paul and I entertained family this weekend and Denver lived up to its reputation for being the best place to live. I hope your weekend was great as well.

Have a wonderful week and I'll see you Wednesday.

Carolyn

FAMILY OF ROTARY

Contributions y Pat Gormay arry

Ted Hendryx shared the following story about his mother's keen eye for art. He inherited several paintings that she purchased from the Egyptian artist Tahia Halin in the 1970's while she and her husband were living in Cairo. (Ted spent his junior year at the American University in Cairo.) His mother's prescient patronage of Halin's work was a gift to Ted: A few months ago, he commissioned Christie's Auction House in London to sell one of the paintings. Ted attended the reception Christie's held in London the night before the auction.

His painting was displayed with other works for sale in one of several elegant galleries. As he was standing by his Halin, a Christie's broker took him aside and invited him to see something special. She led him behind a door and into a closed gallery in the adjoining salon. Hanging on the wall was the newly discovered "Salvator Mundi" painting by Leonardo da Vinci. It would be shipped the next day for auction at Christie's NYC offices.

Attached is a picture of Ted standing by the painting prior to its record-breaking sale a few days later. Salvator Mundi is now on display at the Louvre Abu Dhabi after being purchased by Saudi Arabian prince Bader bin Abudulla bin Mohammed bin Farhan al-Saud for $450 million. Ted's beautiful Tahia Halin painting, titled "Mandolin," sold to a private buyer. He demures that the price was considerably less.

The joy of children and grandchildren is celebrated by many DMHR members and retired Cherry Creek Schools Administrator, Mark Foseid, smiled broadly as he talked about visits to California and travels with his wife Maria and his family. "The grandkids, Bennett, Willa and Sutton, are seven, five and two respectively and challenge our stamina. They keep us young! Mark relaxes by taking his son Peter to Canada fishing (photo). "The fishing is good and the locals are friendly", said Mark
