New generations presentation

Rotarian Leevie gave a very compelling presentation on new generations. After a short video the talk was about the urgently needed change in our education system. There is a clear case of the education system failing even our gifted students. As the system works now it is not impossible that smart children are let down by the system that instead of challenging them and opening their minds awakening curiosity often stifles them with outdated curriculums, over burdened and ill equipped teachers and institutions. The famous question: is what students learn today at all relevant for the world of tomorrow.

In a lively debate members participated with their contributions.
