10 years into the Rotary-USAID water and sanitation partnership, here's what worked, what didn't — and why

By Diana Schoberg | Photography by Andrew Esiebo

An old piece of railroad track is laid across a pit toilet. The walls are crumbling. The stench is overwhelming. It's the only toilet for a school in rural Ghana, and most children refuse to use it. They do their business outside instead — or quit school altogether.

This is an all-too-common experience: Half of Ghana's population lives in rural areas, and only 10 percent of those people have access to basic sanitation. Two-thirds can obtain safe drinking water — after a 30-minute round trip.

Since 2009, Rotary has been working to fix those deficiencies through a partnership with the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). The partnership combines the business skills and local community leadership of Rotarian volunteers with the technical expertise of USAID. Rotary is contributing $9 million to the $18 million partnership; outside of eradicating polio, it is Rotary's largest partnership effort. "We wondered how these two organizations could come together and exploit the synergy between them," says Rotarian Ron Denham, a member of the Rotary-USAID steering committee.

Carols By Candlelight—Dec 08

PE Fiona and her Fundraising Team extend a special thanks to each and every one - thanks for your hard work (for it was a lot of hard work) - thanks for your individual skill sets and your individual and collective know how - without which the show could not have happened - From all reports the night was another fantastic night; signaling for many the beginning of the festive season. And for those children who are in need it is pleasing to report that we have received more than 1500 gifts which will be distributed to their benefit. Well done Team Rotary Club of Barbados - as we continue to live our motto «service above self»--
