Today's Program

Byron Calcote presents Mark Thomas from the Georgetown Economic Development Office.

Program – Nov. 4, 2008

The speaker, Stephen Fought, was introduced by Dick Will. Stephen is a retired B-52 pilot, and was a professor at the Air Force War College. He gave his perspective on the political climate in the Middle East.

He believes that democracy and peace are good U.S. objectives for that region, but they are being undermined by Middle East governments. The intensity of our enemies, fundamental Islam, and high unemployment among men are also factors in hindering the achievement of America's goals.

Program – Nov. 11, 2008

The club thanks President Chris for arranging our meeting at R.O.C.K. (Ride On Center for Kids). Several speakers explained how students with many different physical and learning challenges benefit from riding horses there. Different specialists set goals for children and adults.

Soldiers from Ft. Hood with war related injuries are also being helped at the center. One of them told us how riding has improved his balance.

The center is always in need of volunteers to help carry out their programs.
