-ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Ken, born and raised on Oahu, graduated from Iolani School. He moved to the Big Island in 2002 to be closer to his mother and sister. After graduating from the William S. Richardson School of law, he worked in the Hilo Public Defender's office before opening his own law office in 2005. The County Council soon became his biggest client and later that year he was hired by the Office of the County Clerk. Ken worked at the Clerk's Office for five years being the Deputy and then County Clerk. After the 2010 election, he left the county and worked for Carlsmith Ball LLP in Hilo. He now has his own office located at 688 Kinoole Street, #108. While he does other legal work, Ken is focusing on family law which he finds rewarding.

Ken married a Hilo girl, Donna Iaukea and has three step children: Nakia, 20, who resides in Kona; Cymone, 16, a senior at Hilo High School; and Jontae, 13, a freshman at Hilo High School. He has two children, twins, Samuel and Victoria who will be 3 in November. Ken likes hiking, swimming and going out to dinner with his wife.

Ken enjoys belonging to Rotary as a way to serve and give back to the community and help people throughout the world. Rotary also is a great way to learn about what is going on in our town, county and state.
