History of the 4-Way Test

More than 60 years ago, in the midst of the Great Depression, a U.S. Rotarian devised a simple, four-part ethical guideline that helped him rescue a beleaguered business. The statement and the principles it embodied also helped many others find their own ethical compass. Soon embraced and popularized by Rotary International, The Four-Way Test today stands as one of the organization's hallmarks. It may very well be one of the most famous statements in our century.

Herbert J. Taylor, author of the Test, was a man of action, faith, and high moral principle. Born in Michigan in 1893, he graduated from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. Herb went to France on a mission for the YMCA and the British Army welfare service and served in the U.S. Navy Supply Corps in WWI. In 1919 he married Gloria Forbrich and moved to Oklahoma to work for the Sinclair Oil Company. After some prosperous years in insurance, real estate, and oil lease brokering, he return to Chicago in 1925 to work for the Jewel Tea Company and joined the Rotary Club of Chicago. Despite being in line for presidency at the Jewel Tea Company, he joined the near-bankrupt Club Aluminum Company of Chicago.

He thought about an ethical guideline for the company and wrote a statement of about 100 words, which he decided was too long. The Four-Way Test was once a Seven-Way Test and he finally reduced it to the four searching questions that comprise the Test today. He checked the statement with his four department heads: a Roman Catholic, a Christian Scientist, an Orthodox Jew, and a Presbyterian. They all agreed that the Test's principles not only coincided with their religious beliefs, but also provided an exemplary guide for personal and business life.

And so, "The Four-Way Test of the things we think, say or do" was born:

1. Is it the TRUTH?
2. Is it FAIR to all Concerned?
3. Will it build GOODWILL and BETTER FRIENDSHIPS?
4. Will it be BENEFICIAL to all concerned?

Profound in its simplicity, the Test became the basis for decisions large and small at Club Aluminum.

But any test must be put to the test. Would it work in the real world? Could people in business really live by its precepts? One lawyer told Herb: "If I followed the Test explicitly, I would starve to death. Where business is concerned, I think The Four-Way Test is absolutely impractical."

The test gradually became a guide for every aspect of the business, creating a climate of trust and goodwill among dealers, customers, and employees. It became part of the corporate culture, and eventually helped improve Club Aluminum's reputation and finances.

Herb Taylor transferred the copyright to Rotary International when he served as R.I. president in 1954-55, during the organization's golden anniversary.

The Four-Way Test is international, transcending national boundaries and language barriers. It knows no politics, dogma or creed. More than a code of ethics, it has all the ingredients for a successful life in every way. It can and will work in today's society.

Volunteers clean shoreline

The motto of the annual Get the Drift and Bag It beach cleanup campaign is: "Join with friends to make a positive difference in your community."

That's just what an energetic group of Rotarians and college and high school students did on Saturday in Hilo.

"This annual cleanup is an opportunity for community members to join together in a global effort to remove litter and debris from our coastal environment," said Ed Hara, Rotarian advisor to the Waiakea High School Interact Club.

The WHS Interact Club organized a shoreline cleanup that drew more than 60 volunteers to pick up debris from the Wailoa river mouth, along the shoreline fronting Nihon, to Coconut Island including Lili'uokalani Park.

Volunteers included students and advisors from the University of Hawaii at Hilo Rotaract Club and St. Joseph High School Interact Club, and Rotary Club of Hilo members. They spent Saturday morning cleaning the shoreline, learning about the area's cultural and natural history, then enjoying fellowship following their work.

"I hope that future generations will understand, value and respect the spirit, natural resources and heritage of our island," Hara said.

The Declaration of Rotarians in Businesses and Professions was adopted by the Rotary International Council on Legislation in 1989 to provide more specific guidelines for the high ethical standards called for in the Object of Rotary:

As a Rotarian engaged in a business or profession, I am expected to:

- Consider my vocation to be another opportunity to serve;
- Be faithful to the letter and to the spirit of the ethical codes of my vocation, to the laws of my country, and to the moral standards of my community;
- Do all in my power to dignify my vocation and to promote the highest ethical standards in my chosen vocation;
- Be fair to my employer, employees, associates, competitors, customers, the public, and all those with whom I have a business or professional relationship;
- Recognize the honour and respect due to all occupations which are useful to society;
- Offer my vocational talents: to provide opportunities for young people, to work for the relief of the special needs of others, and to improve the quality of life in my community;
- Adhere to honesty in my advertising and in all representations to the public concerning my business or profession;
- Neither seek from nor grant to a fellow Rotarian a privilege or advantage not normally accorded others in a business or professional relationship.

Senior Active Membership

"Senior Active" is a form of membership reserved for members who have provided substantial years of service to Rotary and is usually regarded as a mark of Rotary distinction. Being a senior active member signifies that a Rotarian has been involved in club activities over a long period. A Rotarian automatically becomes "senior active" upon completion of 15 years of service in one or more Rotary clubs. Senior active status is also conferred upon a Rotarian with ten or more years service who has reached the age of 60, or with five or more years service who has reached the age of 65. A Rotarian who serves as a district governor is also eligible for senior active membership.

One of the benefits of being senior active is that the Rotarian no longer must reside or have his place of business within the territorial limits of the club. If a senior active member moves to another city, he may be invited to join Rotary without having an open classification. When a Rotarian becomes senior active, his/her classification is released to enable another individual to join Rotary. It is important to remember, senior active is not a classification it is a type of membership. A senior active member is always identified by "former classification," which describes a business or profession.

Congratulations Karolyn!

MOST INFLUENTIAL EXECUTIVES

BARRY TANIGUCHI

Barry Taniguchi has been president and CEO of KTA Super Stores since 1989, keeping the nearly century-old Big Island grocery chain in the family. He is the grandson of its founders, who started the business in a 300-square-foot store in 1916 that has since grown into a six-store chain employing more than 800 people.

Taniguchi, 66, calls himself an average guy, but his friends and colleagues know him as a major catalyst for the Big Island's economic development.

His influence in Hawaii extends beyond the family business. He has built a reputation as being highly involved and community-minded, always finding time to volunteer with numerous organizations that shape business in Hawaii. His involvement has included the Hawaii Employers Mutual Insurance Co., Hawaii Health Systems Corp., Hawaiian Electric Industries, Hawaii Employers Council, Hawaii Community Foundation, Tax Foundation of Hawaii, and Queen's Health Systems.

He also is involved in educational initiatives vital to the future of Hawaii, including his role on the University of Hawaii Mauna Kea management board in support of the Thirty Meter Telescope.

Taniguchi also is the former chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of Hawaii and was head of the Neighbor Island subcommittee for the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation meetings in Hawaii in 2011.

Congratulations Barry for being Senior Active, as well!
