Driver needed

Can you drive our monthly keynote speaker back to Perth after our meeting on October 9th?

Dr Shanton Chong, a visiting expert on young people's online behaviour will be speaking at our club (see flyer on last page) on that date. He requires a lift back to Perth after our dinner meeting. Can you do it? Kim Rudd has kindly agreed to pick up Dr Chang, but we need someone for the return trip. Alternatively, do you know someone in Perth (a Rotarian perhaps), who could drive Dr Chang both ways?

Two-minute talks

Peter Hill related how he and Nancy recently worked voluntarily in the Yuendumu community in the NT. The art centre and gallery there is supported by the NT government and has 250 registered artists. He helped despatch art interstate and to the US, France and EU countries in the time he was there. Turnover is $2m/year. Very interesting.

Dinner Meeting Speaker for 2nd October, Rose Hotel
District Governor Nominee

Terry Paini, in Docker's garb, related a 'moment of madness' as a 17yo playing a pre-season friendly with the Kojonup FC against South Fremantle. He took issue with an SFC player flattening and taking out some team mates. He faced up to the player, and told him to stop it. Another SFC player came by and the situation was defused. Who was Terry facing? Basil Campbell. Who defused it? Stan Magro. Whew!

Terry's second story was how he was outsmarted by his 5yo grandson. He offered him $1 if he could put a worm (dug up for fishing bait) back in its hole. The nipper thought for a while, and came back with spray starch, solidified the worm, and won the $1. (When he woke up the next morning there was another $1 coin there from his grandmum!)

John Gray thanked those who helped transfer the last load of furniture from Accordwest to storage in Gordon Golby's premises for the Men's Shed.

Jim Stephen invited all to the sundowner at his place, and given the recent strong September gales, demonstrated appropriate posture for outdoor presentations.

Panorama view (does not capture movement well, apologies)

Neil ("think outside the box") Hamilton led a great fines session based on the ABC TV show "Would I lie to you?" Those who could not judge the truth of a member's claim (after 6 questions) , paid the fine.

TOPIC

"Young People's Online Behaviour"

Young people today 'live' much of their life surrounded by technology. Most of them spend what seem to be inordinate hours online. Yet our understanding of online behaviour is only starting to take shape. This is not surprising as technology, online content and applications are shifting at a phenomenal speed. Hence, I am interested in studying areas related to young people's online behaviour and how it may impact on education, mental well-being and also their patterns of social networking. This presentation will highlight some of the key issues around these behaviours and how Rotary might respond to their needs.

Dr Shanton Chang is also senior lecturer in Change Management and Social Impacts of Information Systems at the University of Melbourne – this is the subject he will be addressing. His current primary areas of research include the Social Aspects of Broadband Technology Adoption, Online Behaviour of Young People, and the Relationship between Cultures and Information Technology. His PhD was completed at Monash University in the area of Competencies for Managing Multicultural Workgroups.

He is also a recipient of a number of Awards for Excellence in Teaching from the University. He has been involved in the international education sector in Australia for nearly two decades. His involvement started during his days as an international student in the early nineties. In 2000, he received the IDP award for outstanding contribution to the international education sector. In 2009, he received the ISANA Award for Contribution to the Professional Association for International Education. In 2011, he received an Australian Learning and Teaching Council Citation for "Excellence in providing students with cross-cultural learning experiences through internationalised curricula that builds cultural awareness and promotes peer-learning among students from diverse backgrounds"
