

Advice on combating COVID-19 has centred on isolation, hand washing and personal hygiene. Given this, how would you feel if access to the basics of personal hygiene was limited or ineffectual?

Remote indigenous communities have isolation to some extent but bathrooms and general water supplies are often inadequate or faulty. EndTrachoma2020 has been working tirelessly to address these problems as they relate to the spread of Trachoma but they are just as relevant to COVID-19.

EndTrachoma is one of Rotary Australia's Centenary Projects, working with partners to spread the public health message and improve the state of facilities in remote indigenous communities.

Please consider supporting our work in this critical area, and leverage the good work completed so far!
