November 2022- Edition Two

Ocean Discovery Institute

Carla Camacho is the Manager of Business Development at the Ocean Discovery Institute.

The Ocean Discovery Institute creates learning experiences for young people traditionally excluded from science due to race, income status, and educational opportunity. Students enrolled in their programs will join high-paying fields, break generational poverty, and change the future of science.

On November 8th, we were so impressed by a presentation by Carla Camacho who is the Institute's Director of Business Development. She briefed us on the work they are doing to expose youth in underserved communities with science and science careers.

The Ocean Discovery Institute has an impressive and modern facility nestled into the City Heights neighborhood. Monthly Field Trips enable families to explore coastal environments, experience college campuses, and science and science-related companies. After-School and Summer Camps provide week-long experiences for students K-8. The operation of the Ocean Discovery Institute relies on the generosity of the community to fund their 100% tuition-free programs. Most participants attend elementary schools and middle schools that feed into Hoover High School. Ocean Discovery Institute is another example of an inspired non profit offering programs and experiences that will change children's lives!
