This week I start with a phrase from Babe Ruth - "Never let the fear of striking out keep you from playing the game" this phrase is going in my mind this whole week, I saw many obstacles, in fact in my english class, but all this don't make me stop keep trying. Obstacles are here to be broke and I will always try do that. I had two weeks to read a book and do a test in my english class and all my classmates had the summer vacation to read, but this don't make me give up, my family here helped me, trying all the time make me better, "making me feel up"; so I made, I read the book and made the test. And also I have to stop for a while with the soccer training to make my knees stronger for the games!

Let this part apart. This week was really fun as the others one, but this one is actually much special, on wednesday made ONE MONTH that I have being here, and I want to thanks everyone that is making this true and a lot better than I ever could dream.

On this and the past week we.... had "the girls night", my mom, my sisters and me went in a Italian Restaurant, and we had some much fun!!! Me and my siblings made little bolts and we put in the puddle of water I love it and I felt like a really american child! On friday morning we had the pep rally in the school was fantastic, I had never seeing a thing like that I just loved it, and at night we had the homecoming, I went with my friends and we had so much fun. Was really really cold, my first freezing feeling was on friday night at the game, but still everything amazing, spend time with my new friends was just all that I needed in this busy week!!!

This week I have special thanks for my first host family, for helped me with all the obstacles that I had, is so good to feel like a really daughter! "No matter what, no matter where, it's always home if love is there"

Sung Table Grace Every Other Week!!

Every other week we'll sing our table grace instead of an individual offering a prayer. The tune is the Christian Doxology; words:
