

Homes for Generations

October 13, 2014

To Whom It May Concern:

In 2013, Aeon received funding from the Roseville Rotary – with help from the Roseville Community Foundation – for the purchase and installation of playground equipment at Sienna Green. Since completing construction of the final phase of Sienna Green, this playground has successfully provided recreational space for the children of the more than 170 households that make Sienna Green their home. Playground funding from the Roseville Rotary has allowed Aeon's principles of healthy living to extend beyond the design elements included inside of Sienna Green to the outdoor space enjoyed by the buildings' youngest residents.

Additionally, this outdoor space fosters community connections for both the children living at Sienna Green and their parents. Located centrally amongst the property's six buildings, the playground funded by the Roseville Rotary both connects the property's five existing buildings to the newly constructed apartments as well as connects the children and parents of all the buildings.
