Program: Bill Van Duker introduced Gail Moxley who then introduced our speakers for today, Jason Post and Jennifer Karvik... Jason explained that he is a respiratory therapist by profession and is working with Telemedicine Network In 2008; The Mercy Neurological Institute received a $500,000 grant from the Elliott Homes Foundation to provide access to specialists and services to partner hospitals. Timing is critical in responding to a stroke patient...This system provides timely access to high quality specialized healthcare. Stroke Telemedicine Supported by Dignity Health Neurological Institute of Northern California neurologists and neurocritical care specialists, the Dignity Health Telemedicine Network brings together highly specialized physicians and state-of-the-art technology to offer patients immediate access to advanced medical care. Patients who live far from urban centers often need the attention of a specialist familiar with the latest advancements and medical capabilities beyond what is available close by. With the Dignity Health Telemedicine Network, access to a specialist's assessment and prescribed plan of action requires just the flick of a switch. Stroke Telemedicine: How it Works Telemedicine is especially helpful to people with stroke as it allows us to provide critical care without losing time transporting the patient to a different hospital. Dignity Health is one of the first hospital systems in the area to offer this innovative wireless technology. When a stroke patient arrives at one of the partnering community hospitals that have limited access to specialized care, an on-call Dignity Health Neurological Institute of Northern California stroke specialist can examine the patient via a robot linked to the call. Upon arrival at a partner hospital, we immediately begin the process of assessing and treating the stroke symptoms: The emergency room staff telephones to activate the network and page the remote on-call stroke specialist. Using a mobile laptop and wireless Internet to connect to a life-sized robot, the stroke specialist is virtually at the patient's bedside within minutes. Once connected, the stroke specialist can drive and maneuver the robot around the patient with complete mobility, as if he/she were physically at the remote site. The stroke specialist uses two-way audio and video capability to conduct a neurological assessment with the patient, to zoom in and read data off monitors and devices, and to interact with family members and emergency room staff. The process gives the doctor the information needed to make the most informed decision for immediate management of the patient's condition The area of service has grown to include 50 hospitals with three more in process. Tele Mental Health – Pediatrics – VIP Home Care – Tele Health ICU – Tele ICU Round and Respond The Dignity Health Telemedicine Network brings together highly specialized physicians and state-of-the-art technology to offer patients immediate access to life-saving medical care. Patients who live far from urban centers often need the attention of a specialist familiar with the latest advancements and medical capabilities beyond what is available close by. With the Dignity Health Telemedicine Network, access to a specialist's assessment and prescribed plan of action requires just the flick of a switch. The Dignity Health Telemedicine Network partners with community hospitals that have limited access to specialized care. Available 24/7, the Network connects patients and their attending physicians to Sacramento's Mercy General Hospital or Mercy San Juan Medical Center via two-way live video/audio feed and image sharing technology to support diagnosis and treatment for optimal patient care. The Network also provides a streamlined process of transferring patients who may require the services of a more comprehensive center with enhanced technical capabilities. Jennifer Kavrik is an RN,CCRN at Mercy San Juan Hospital and spoke about how Telemedicine Network interfaces with Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICU) to provide specific specialists... We were treated to a demo of how the Tele Robot can go right to the patient and bring the specialist to the bedside. The video is crystal clean and even allows for patient pupil analysis... AMAZING...Thank You Troy and Jennifer for bring this technology to us and to our community...
