HOW TO EXCEL IN LIFE

Everyone's idea of excelling at life is different. You are an individual person with a unique set of life experiences. These experiences have influenced your ideas about yourself, your goals, the world, and your definition of success. Excelling at life doesn't always mean that your life will be a smoothly running machine where you've overcome every failure and achieved all of your dreams. Be realistic about what excelling at life means to you. Make creative, flexible goals, and develop a hardy sense of self-worth and confidence. It's also important to understand that success means doing your best.

1. A major factor in creating lasting, positive change in your life is that you have to see yourself as someone who can create change. Take responsibility for who you are, what you do, and what you choose. Embrace the power of choice in your life, and understand that every day you are making choices.

Remove the word "can't" from your vocabulary. "Can't" is a word that stops creativity and makes you feel stuck in your situation. But the word is usually a replacement for a real meaning. For example, you might say, "I can't speak French." What you really mean to say is: "I don't know how to speak French." When you say "can't," there is an assumption that there is no solution. If you say that you don't know how to do something, then you recognize that you have agency in a situation to change how you act or think.

For example, yes, you get up and go to work every day....but do you HAVE to? Absolutely not. You could choose to stay in bed and lose your job. Choices have consequences, but it is very important to shift the focus from things you feel you are bound by to understanding the power of choice you have in your life. Will you choose to go to work? Yes, because you don't want the consequences of losing your job. It's still a choice. You are an agent of change, and you make choices every day. Empower yourself by fully embracing the power of choice that you have.

Surround yourself with positive people. These are friends and family members who will encourage you and support you. You may have to take some stock in your personal relationships and make decisions about the people in your life and whether or not they hold you up or pull you down. Honor yourself. Part of honoring yourself is honoring that you deserve to be around healthy, supportive people. Excelling at life is a pretty hefty goal, and it involves every aspect of your interactions.

AUGUST BIRTHDAYS

-Rtn Kemigabo - 19th August

ANNIVERSARIES

-Rtn Katamba - 16th August

What is a privileged WILL and un privileged WILL?

A privileged Will is applicable to privileged people and these are soldiers and those at marine ie on water because their lives are at risk anytime they can die they don't have time to make orderly written WILLS.

A priveleged WILL can be made orally by word of mouth but at least two people must present at the same time.

It can also be made orally and partly written and or completely written. In this scenario i does not need to be witnessed by two peopl One is enough or even if it's not witnessed t can be proved that it was made by the maker.

Un privileged WILL is the ordinary WILL. It should be signed by the maker in presence / witnessed by those two people who are not beneficiially to the WILL. It must state the property, children, people intended distribution, executors it must be made by a sane person above 18years old.
