Table Refurbishment

Our club's biggest commitment is running the information booth at EPIC farmer's market. In addition, to customer service, we rent out tables to vendors.

Over the years, some of the tables have fallen into disrepair and were starting to fall apart. With a keen sense of duty to the market community, the market master felt obligated to fix the degraded tables.

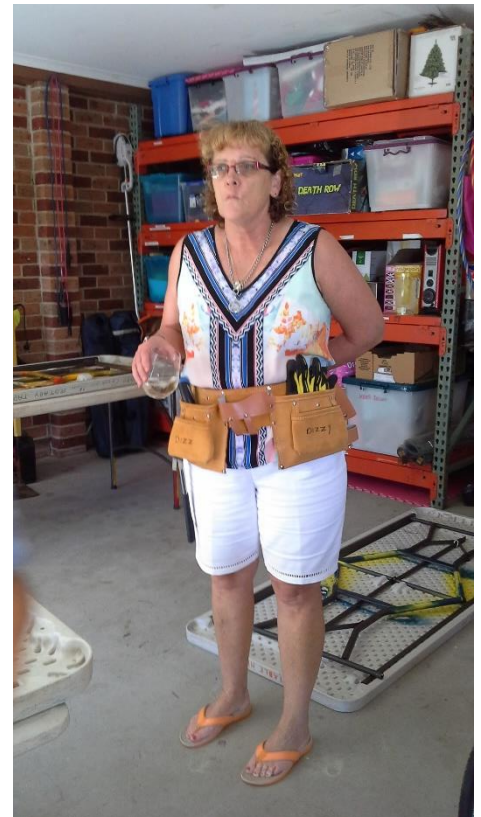

The word was put out to assemble a working party at the Miller's place on Saturday, March 12th to investigate and rectify the problem of dysfunctional tables. The call for help was met by a handful of highly motivated members all wielding power tools and exuding enthusiasm. The process started off slowly as the team analysed the core problems then devised the best course of action.

One by one the tables were transformed from self-collapsing pieces of junk into fully functional tables for vendors to proudly display their goods. The last step in the process we called the vendor test. One of us would set up the table in a similar fashion as what the vendors do. If the legs locked and the table was sturdy, it passed. If not, then it was reworked on until it passed our rigorous operational trial. There were 11 dodgy tables to fix and the dedicated crew was able to resurrect 10 of them saving the club hundreds of dollars in replacement cost.

This operation would not be complete without proper supervision.

And behind the scenes of a good Rotary project, is the support of a friend of Rotary.

Thank you, for a fun and productive afternoon.
