

Jerrabomberra Wetlands to Breakfast

The scenic Jerra wetlands, what a wonderful way to start a beautiful Sunday morning. The air was crisp, the sun was warm, and the inhabitants of the wetlands greeting the new day with their daily activities. And we were there to enjoy nature's gifts.

The Hobbs and Millers enjoying some of life's gifts. Friendship, nature, good weather, and exercise.

There are 5 observation huts around the wetlands for visitors to observe the wildlife without disturbing their daily routine. Liz is reminding us to be quiet in this peaceful place.

Our walk meandered through wetlands and bushlands as we made our way to Kingston for a well-deserved breakfast.

The Local Press Café is a wonderful little gem. The food and coffee are exceptional, and the nautical theme deco's added to the atmosphere. This is a very popular place, so I suggest arriving early or be prepared to wait for a table.

We had such a nice time on this adventure we are planning on another one soon. Stay tuned to Club Runner to be the first to know about our next outing.
