Dr. Debra Dupree of Relationships at Work, Inc. made a curtain call and was our speaker again after her visit in August last year. Her main point is that emotions precede cognition, they comprise the dynamics that drive human behavior.

In a business setting, often the leadership style of the boss permeates the whole organization. Therefore, “diving below the surface” and determining the fears, values and needs that cause the boss to act the way he/she does, will help in creating a plan to make the work environment more productive and less stressful.

There is science behind the fact that compassion (the act of showing empathy) can determine how relationships develop and, conversely, what needs to be done to improve them. The act of compassion is reflected in the eyes, so our appearance needs to be warm and free from anxiety.

Her position is that leadership needs to change its mindset from convincing and converting to listening and learning.

She again brought us an important life lesson we all need.

Sponsored by: Ben Vallejos

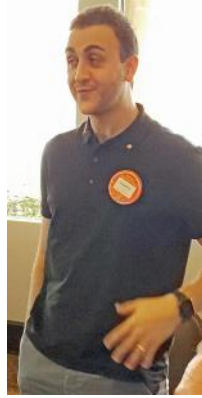

Ben Vallejos is the Executive Director and know-it-all at the Living Coast Discovery Center. This year is the amazing 32nd anniversary of the Center which was on the financial ropes and planning its closure and distribution of animals just a half dozen years ago. But, under Ben’s leadership the community and supporting companies came alive with money thanks to many participants. With solid financials and visitor traffic bigger and brighter things are planned. The 10th annual Farm to Bay fund-raising event is just ahead on August 3rd; get your tickets or financial sponsorship now.

Winners

“Frankie” Escobedo is just thrilled that elementary school is out! He is also featured as a “Man of the Year” in Our Hometown Magazine. Alas, he wasn’t wearing his rotary pin at the time!!

Stephen Ablahad is celebrating the birth of his second child! He explained the birth was very wearing and it’s taking him time to recover. He reluctantly admitted that his wife had a small role to play in the birth! Wait till she hears of that!

Tijuana Home Building—Thanks again to all the volunteers from both Eastlake and Chula Vista clubs. Thank you to Ben Koala for these pictures he posted on the club’s Facebook page. Another heart-warming project that helps those in need in our neighboring country.
