Avian Rehabilitation Center Eric Kern, Founder / President

During my tenure as a volunteer and then the executive director of Parrot Education and Adoption Center, I started to notice some areas in the world of animal rescue and rehoming that I felt needed to be redesigned.

Through the generosity of the Kern Trust and Foundation, I was able to leave Parrot Education and Adoption Center and develop ARC, the Avian Rehabilitation Center, through which I am able to facilitate this necessary assistance through my own design, with guidance from the ARC Board of Directors.

ARC's mission encompasses the following three arms, implementing measures that address the welfare of exotic avian species: Education, Rehabilitation and Rehoming, & Grant Funding.

ARC will be offering one-on-one, as well as small-group, presentations on a wide range of avian-related topics. We will also provide a comprehensive presentation, "All Things Parrot," for those wishing to adopt one of the ARC foster birds under our care. This presentation will be supplemented by a specific one that is tailored to provide not only the information necessary for success with the species that the person wishes to adopt, but also encompassing specific details for the individual bird in which they are interested.

As ARC grows and develops, it is my hope that more people and exotic avian species will experience the benefits of each other's companionship. I want to thank you in advance for your financial support as we continue to help birds in need.
