A huge portion of the Malawian population resides in rural and semi-urban areas which are affected by water-related infections due to lack of access to reliable water sources which can provide safe, clean and healthy water. The project proposal outlines measures that can be undertaken to provide shallow wells which will address this problem in the targeted communities.

African Enterprise Development Facilitators conducted a needs assessment of the situation concerning the water situation in a community called Chiunguluma and found that most people in this area have been drinking water from unprotected shallow wells. Disease such as cholera, dysentery, bilharzias, and typhoid are common, especially during the rainy season, due to unprotected water.

The water project shall be implemented in Chiumguluma village to the western part of Lilongwe city. The site has 103 households. The local leadership and the community are eager to support this project. The effort of mobilizing the installation of boreholes in these communities will help promote good health through the drinking of safe and clean water.
