SUE EMERSON

“A Whale of a Good Time”

Sue Emerson will discuss her role as a volunteer naturalist with the San Diego Natural History Museum (the NAT) on the Hornblower and introduce the types of whales observed off the San Diego coast. As a life-long whale watch enthusiast who has experienced whale watching all over the world, Sue will share stories of her whale watch adventures with an emphasis on observations of Gray Whales in San Diego and Mexico. Humpback whales in San Diego and Maui as well as Orca along our Pacific coast will also be discussed. She will touch on migration, feeding, behaviors and threats. If time allows, other common animals observed on whale watch trips will be included.

Sue Emerson has a life-long passion for the ocean. She has a Master of Science in Biology with an emphasis in marine ecology. A life-long educator, she taught biology and chemistry for 22 years and served in administration for 15 years. Most recently, Sue has volunteered as a whale naturalist through the San Diego Natural History Museum on the Hornblower whale watch cruises. Sue has served the past two years as President of the NAT Whalers group, including on-going training for over 60 whale watch volunteers. Her experiences include whale watching along the Pacific coastline from San Diego to Washington, Mexico, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, New England, Norway, Iceland and South Africa.
