SDSU College of Extended Studies

Casey Rothenberger

What is the College of Extended Studies?

The College offers a wide variety of lifelong learning classes, seminars, certificate and degree programs, and other learning opportunities for students in every facet of life.

The word catalyst comes to us from the world of chemistry, and still conjures images of a scientist working away in a lab, beakers bubbling away, combining materials in hopes of creating something new. The chemist adds a catalyst to the mix to speed up the process - or change it completely, opening up new possibilities.

The College of Extended Studies is many things to many people - a community, an educational institution, a social hub, a place to network - but above all, the College is a catalyst, the ingredient that's added to create change in your life.

What's the change we can help you create today?

Advance your career. CES helps hundreds of professionals fast-track their careers every year, with 50 professional certificate programs and a range of career enhancement courses offered online, on campus, and at corporate and military venues. From project management to process improvement, health care to human resources, we have programs to meet your professional goals.

Take that class you've always wanted to try. Whether it's learning Persian to fulfill your foreign language credit requirement, or learning photo editing to fulfill your creative side, CES offers a range of courses so varied and interesting, we can't possibly name them all here!

Learn English. Through the American Language Institute, international business professionals and students wanting to enter U.S. universities are honing their English-speaking skills. Students from more than 50 countries attend the excellent English programs SDSU offers.
