Raising Healthy Families Together is an informal network of social service organizations providing services to the residents of the Oglala Lakota Nation on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

It was founded in 2015. It has an email base of 40+ members. It meets four times a year to share information between members. A member organization gives a presentation of his/her organization and every participant provides an update of any staff changes and what their organization is doing. There is also a shared calendar for the next three months of events engaging social service agencies.

This Pine Ridge Area Social Services Organizations Contacts Directory was originated by Angie Sam, TANF Director. Her intern, Maretta Afraid of Bear, collected the initial data and Robyn Whirlwind Horse assisted with data entry in 2016/17. Aimee Pond, Pine Ridge School, provided service categories. Dr. Craig Howe, Center for American Indian Research and Native Studies (CAIRNS) and Tom Allen, Oglala Lakota College, provided historical and contemporary Tribal information. On behalf of Omniciye Multi-Cultural Rotary Club, Dee Katus edited the data, and Tom Katus and Linda Peterson provided subsequent editing and electronic publishing.

If you would like to be added to Raising Healthy Families Together email group to receive notification of future meetings and other activities, please contact:

DELTA DENTAL MOBILE PROGRAM provides oral health services to underserved children. The program includes two trucks that serve as mobile clinics to provide preventive, diagnostic and restorative care, and dental hygienists and community health workers based on the state's Native American reservations.

On Pine Ridge, three hygienists and two community health workers conduct preventive oral health clinics at schools, Head Starts, and community centers throughout the year. At these clinics children receive education, cleaning, sealants, and fluoride treatments. Children are also referred to a dentist for any restorative needs.

There are also sites on Pine Ridge visited by the Delta Dental Mobile Program trucks for weeks at a time. At these sites a local community site partner helps to identify children most in need of care who can least afford it. Local community sponsors also contribute a $2,500 stipend for the visit.

SDSU EXTENSION; SDSU EXTENSION'S NATIVE AMERICAN BEGINNING FARMER RANCHER (BFR) PROGRAM & TRIBAL LOCAL FOODS PROGRAM (NABFRDP) Native

American Beginning Farmer Rancher Program (NABFRDP) and the Tribal Local Food Program, exists to empower the average tribal member to become a local food producer. The more tribal people we have producing food, the more directly they'll be able to address the food insecurity that's afflicting their people. Food entrepreneurship is scalable, allowing even a tribal member with their own back yard to become involved in agriculture, addressing the poverty and high levels of unemployment on our South Dakota Reservations.

NABFRDP addresses food access issues, the food sovereignty of our Tribes, increases food utilization at home and increases the knowledge and awareness amongst tribal members of USDA, SD. Dept of Ag, and SDSU programs that exist to assist them. It helps increase both food production and food utilization locally. Snap-Ed/EFNEP: The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program Education (SNAP-Ed) in SD teaches participants healthy food choices, how to be physically active and how to stretch food dollars. This leads to savings for the community on food assistance programs, lowered health care and public assistance costs, and a decrease in the burden on social healthcare resources like Medicare SDSU Extension Food and Families programs are committed to improving the quality of life for individuals and families, and the communities in which they live, work, and play.

We draw upon the knowledge and resources at SDSU to help solve the "wicked" and interrelated population health challenges South Dakotans face today; providing consumers with knowledge, research, and unbiased information on aging, food, families, finances, food safety, health, nutrition, physical activity, and wellness. The SDSU Extension 4-H Youth Development newsletter is your source for South Dakota 4-H events and deadlines, volunteer resources, youth development tools and updates from our great programs around the state.
