BIRTHING KIT FOUNDATION AUSTRALIA

Our Vision

A world in which all women and girls have access to a clean and safe birth

Our Mission

To positively impact the lives of mothers and babies in developing countries.
Partner with organisations and communities to advocate, educate and provide resources to improve outcomes for expectant mothers.

Enable systems where women and girls become truly empowered.

Who we are

The Birthing Kit Foundation (Australia) is a humanitarian organisation that provides birthing kits and education in clean birthing practices to women birthing at home in remote regions of the developing world.

What we do

We work in partnership with the Australian Community and a number of Global Organisations to pack and supply Clean Birth Kits to pregnant women living in rural communities and low-resource settings around the world. To date, 2.4 million Clean Birth Kits have been distributed to women in need. Kits are given to mothers through community outreach programs, supplied to health facilities for use by doctors, midwives and nurses or distributed to traditional birthing attendants. They are designed to support hygienic practices and environments during childbirth in under-resourced settings.

Our Achievements

We have supplied over 2.4 million clean birth kits to women in remote regions of over 30 countries, trained over 10,000 traditional birth attendants and contributed to the prevention of FGM in communities that were killing their women in childbirth. The impact of our work cannot be underestimated, with many unexpected benefits for the women and communities we support.

We target communities in remote regions of developing countries where there is little chance of a midwife present, and the birthing mother is fortunate to have a Traditional Birth Attendant to help her.

In these countries the government often does not have the capacity to provide good maternal and neonatal health care. A clean birth kit will provide everything a mother needs to have reasonably safe and clean birthing environment.

A kit may be the difference between a woman and a baby living or dying during the birthing process. Everyone is precious. Ruth Kennedy in Ethiopia described the kit as being "more precious than silver or gold."

Resources

From our very first 100 kits sent to Papua New Guinea, we received positive feedback on the impact of the birthing kits. The Traditional Birth Attendants (TBA) could see more women and babies surviving as a result of these kits, and universally all requested more.

As our programs grew in complexity to TBA training programs, the achievements also grew along with the empowerment of the women with education.

Clean birth kits give women in remote regions of a developing country a chance to have a clean and safe birth. They stop infections and the deaths of mothers and babies from these infections. The use of gloves also stops the spread of HIV and other STDs.

What's in a Birthing Kit?

Soap to wash the birth attendant's hands and the mother's perineum.

A plastic sheet to prevent the mother and newborn coming into contact with the ground or an unhygienic surface. Gloves to cover the birth attendant's hands and provide protection from infections such as HIV for carers and care recipients.

Gauze to wipe clear the newborn baby's eyes, and to clean the mother's perineum prior to giving birth.

Cord ties to tie the umbilical cord.

A sterile blade to cut the umbilical cord cleanly and reduce risk of newborn sepsis and tetanus.

How do you decide who gets the kits?

Kits are sent to organisations that have undergone an application and approval process to become a BKFA Field Partner. This process ensures that our Field Partners have the capacity to identify high-need populations and effectively integrate the Birthing Kits into their existing programs and/or services. New and continuing Birthing Kit grants to Field Partners are awarded on an annual basis in line with BKFA's program strategy and partnership guidelines.

How do you know the kits work?

'Disposable Delivery Kits' are recommended by the World Health Organisation (WHO) as an essential tool for use by birth attendants when a delivery occurs at home, particularly in emergency settings(2). There is international evidence to suggest that kits prevent childbirth-related infections and also act to improve health outcomes for mothers and babies by removing barriers and supporting mothers to access health services. In many low-resource settings health facilities are not adequately equipped with clean supplies, so kits can also be used to resource and improve the basic cleanliness of these environments. Our Field Partners also report back to us on a regular basis, describing the positive effect that kits have had on childbirth care in their distribution areas.

Where are kits used and by whom?

Distribution methods are relevant to the different target communities and include individual, community-based, and health facility-based strategies. Kits are therefore used by mothers and birth attendants during births at home and other community settings or health facilities.

Members, partners and friends of the RCStP assembled 600 Birthing Kits.

Back by popular demand, Adelaide artists Suzette Watkins and Mike Fewster capture Australian and European scenes in jewellery and photography.

From their home base in Adelaide they travel throughout Australia, interpreting its unique landscape from sweeping vistas to intricate details in unique pairings of jewellery and photography.

Each piece of Suzette's jewellery comes with a photograph by Mike of the place that inspired the piece. Mike's photographs are also available as fine art prints for framing.

Jewellery pieces will be available for purchase and should a necklace not fit exactly, the size will be adjusted to suit. Earrings can also be adjusted to accommodate clip fittings.

Please join us at the opening.

Where: Exhibition area, Damien on Fisher Restaurant.

When: Thursday 4th November 2021.

Time: 5pm to 6pm.
