Ross is the Executive Chairman of KPMG New Zealand and a member of KPMG’s Global Council and ASPAC Board. During his 30-year career with KPMG, he has managed the firm’s Audit and Tax practices in addition to the firm’s People, Performance and Culture function. Ross also serves as client relationship lead partner for a number of KPMG’s key clients. Ross passionately believes the role of KPMG is to help fuel New Zealand’s prosperity: “New Zealand is an economy that is highly influenced by the success of its enterprises. Through helping New Zealand’s enterprises and organisations succeed and our communities grow, our country will succeed and prosper.

PG Peter presented PP Gary with two District Awards for his time as President. They were – Foundation 100 percent member contribution banner and the Presidential Citation (one of only two clubs who succeeded that year). Rotoroa trip this Sunday 8:15 AM $52 per person bring your own barbecue food and suitable footwear.

Julie reported that she had been to Dargaville for the weekend and seen a kumara farm, a sheep farm, a cattle farm and had been on a shooting range. Special thanks to the Rotary Club of Dargaville.

What a wonderful meal we had-top quality food, great presentation and it fitted in well with the meeting.

It was great to have Rod and Raylee’s family with us- Matthew, Belinda and Son in Law Simon as well as Karen Baeyertz from Thermosash (many of us have received her emails).

Rod Fergusson and Thermosash – 32 years together.

Thermosash specialises in windows and cladding and all of the buildings in Smales Farm are theirs. 170 of their workers come from overseas. The firm was formed by Laurie Hayes in 1973 and he purchased a Malaysian firm Kris Metals and soon after a Wellington aluminium firm whose staff rose from 6 to 70. Rob joined in 1986 at the Hillside Road premises where they had eight factory workers and 10 office staff. Thermosash joined a 50-50 partnership with Woods glass from Whangarei which they quickly outgrew. The 1987 crash took some time to reach them but eventually a number of buildings were not completed causing some problems. 1990 saw David Hayes take over the company – he has been awarded a PHF for supporting the yachting and golf tournaments from their inception. Various slides were shown.

In 1991 the firm swapped to a smaller building as it was unlikely there would be any new high-rises for 8 to 10 years. By 1993 with staff help they managed to survive when other firms collapsed. Te Papa and Sky City saw a resurgence and two more takeovers. By 2012 they had rebranded and had 165 vehicles. They built the IRD building in Christchurch which survived the quake and then were part of the rebuild. They acquired Insight Facades with 75 staff and moved to a modern assembly line in View Rd. They now have 615 employees and are regular users of large cranes. Two short videos were shown.

The club thanked Rod and Karen for their presentation
